BUSINESS MEN'S BIG PICNIC

Executive Committee Meets at the Nittany Club.

TO MAKE THE PLANS

For the Annual Outing at Beautiful Hecla Park—Philipsburg and the Autos to Play Ball-Other Amusements.

KNIGHT TEMPLAR BAND IS INVITED.

On Tuesday afternoon the Nittany Country Club, located in one of the prettiest spots in Central Pennsylvania, was the scene of a gathering of representative business men of Centre and Clinton county's. The occassion was the meeting of the Business Men's Picnic Association of Centre and Clinton county's. The Bellefonte delegation went to the park in automobiles and on the 2:20 train. Those from Lock Haven were brought to Hecla on the afternoon train reaching there at about 5 o'clock.

Those present from Clinton county were George W. Mason, C. F. Brown, G. W. Fredericks, A. L. Merrill, P. P. Rittman, P. S. Kift, F. E. Harder, of Lock Haven, T. J. Smull, Mackeyville; John R. Thompson, Salona; Joel Herr, Ceder Springs; P. H. Stewart. Island, D. H. Stoner, Mill Hall

Those from Centre county were J. C. Meyer, Hard P. Harris, John N. Bullock, Hammond Schler, J. Will Conley, Harry Otto, John D. Sourbeck, Sidney Krumrine, A. C. Mingle, F. E. Naginey, Robert Cole, D. G. Stuart, John I. Olewine, Horton S. Ray, George A. Beezer and Frank Warfield, of Bellefonte; Capt. S. H. Bennison, of Abdera; W. Gross Mingle, of Centre Hall.

The press of the two county's was represented as follows: D. I. McNaul, Lock Haven Democrat, U. A. Xander, of Lock Haven Express; Judge C. H. Bressler, of Clinton County Times; Francis Speer, of The Centre Democrat, I. H. Harter and Charles F. Mench, of the Gazette; Earle C. Tuten, of the Bellefonte Republican.

The afternoon passed very pleasantly and at quarter past 5 o'clock all sat down to a delightful supper served in the dining room of the Nittany Country Club. It was a feast fit for the Gods and was heartily enjoyed by the 36 who sat around the big tables. Roast beef was on the bill-of fare and D. G. Stuart at one end of the table and A. C. Mingle at the other did the carving in good elegant style. Cap. Mingle saw that everybody got a piece of kidney ?

After supper all gathered on the east porch where the Executive committee was called to order by President Mingle. The roll was called by Secretary Meyer and then the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The President announced the following committees which he had appointed and notified a week ago of their duties.

Music—Hard P. Harris, George R Meek, A. C. Candor.

Management—J. C. Meyer, Geo. W. Mason, J. Will Conley.

Finance—Hammond Sechler, T. J. Smull, John M. Bullock, Philip D. Foster and M. D. Kelly.

Amusements—J. D. Sourbeck, Philip S. Kift, Sidney Krumrine, Frank Harder and C. H. Bressler.

Printing—John I. Olewine, A. L. Merrill, W. Gross Mingle.

Closing—D. I. McNaul, U. A. Xander, Earle C. Tuten and C. F. Montgomery.

The committee on Finance reported the following funds available: Prfnting $50.00; Music $185,00; Pigeon Shoot $50. Base Ball $125.00; Entertainment $150, a total of $625

A letter was read from Mayor W. H. Stevenson, of Lock Haven, agreeing to do all he could to make the picnic a success.

J. D. Sourbeck of the Amusement committee reported arrangements for a ball game between the crack Philipsburg team and the famous Auto's of Lock Haven. A $50.00 purse goes to the winners and the expenses of both teams will be paid. There will be a live pigeon shoot between teams from Centre and Clinton. There will be running teams, lawn tennis contests, etc. The Executive committee also promised to take a hand in the sports and there is liable to be pillow fights, spitting matches and other ludicrous features and funny stunts.

The closing committee reported that Bellefonte would close up tight and that Lock Haven would probable do likewise.

H. P. Harris of the music committee reported that they were trying to arrange to get the Imperial Teteque band of Williamsport to furnish concerts during the day. This is the famous Knight Templar band.

This ended the business and after an hour or two spent socially the committees members wended their way home by train and auto after voting the Nittany Country Club the best and most hospitable place on earth.

SPICHER—HECKMAN.

Pretty Nuptial Event That Took Place Wednesday Noon.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Heckman, on East Lamb street, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty nuptial event Wednesday when their daughter Rebecca Heckman, was united in holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Calvin Spicher, of Wilkinsburg. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present. The house was very prettily decorated for the occasion and it was just 11 o'clock when the happy couple took their position before Rev. Ambrose Schmidt, pastor of the Reformed church, who soon pronounced the words that made them man and wife.

The bride who was very handsomely gowned in white was attended by Miss Minnie Cole of Bellefonte as bridesmaid, while the groom had for bestman, Mr. William Sholl, of Jersey City New Jersey.

After the ceremony the bride and groom were showered with congratulations after which a delightful wedding dinner was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents thus testifying to the high esteem in which she is held by all who knew her. For several years she has taught the Coleville school and was very successful and greatly loved and admired by her pupils. She will make a splendid helpmate through life's journey.

Her husband, Calvin Spicher is a mail carrier in Wilkinsburg. He has already furnished a cosy home for his bride and we feel sure will make her a splendid husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Spicher departed on the 1:05 train Wednesday for their home in Wilkinsburg, followed by the congratulations and best wishes of a large circle of friends who will wish them a pleasant and prosperous voyage on the sea of matrimony.

Centennial Of The Evangelical Church

On Wednesday and Thursday September 25 and 26, next, there will be held in the village of Kleinfeltersville, Lebanon county, the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the meeting of the first annual conference of the Evangelical Association.

It is eminently proper that the celebration should be held at Kleinfeltersville, since it was here that the Evangelical church had its birth and in a building but a short distance away where the first annual conference was held. The latter meeting was held in the Becker home, November 15 and 16, 1807. The building in which the first conference was held is still standing and is occupied as a farm house. It is a dressed sandstone, which was quarried nearby. The date stone in the wall indicates that the building was erected in 1770

The Evangelical Association was organized in 1803, a mile northeast of this place, at the home of John George Becker, who was one of the first among the followers of Albright.

When four years later the first annual conference convened the membership of the demonstration numbered 220, "nearly all of whom professed conversion." The sessions were attended by five itinerant official laymen. At this meeting Rev. Jacob Albright was elected bishop and instructed to form rules of dicipline. In the same house met also the third and fourth annual conferences.

Fun At a Picnic.

At the picnic of the Sunday school of St. Stephen's Reformed church of Reading held at Friedensburg Friday, Miss Sadie Sonen won the 50-yard dash for old maids; Mrs. William J. Lowe the same event for fat women, and Wilson J. Kline for fat men. Mrs. Lowe also won a nail driving contest.

The pastor' Rev. Thomas J. Leinbach, scored four hits in the baseball game between the married and single men, winning the game for the former by the score of 7 to 5.

TWENTY LIVES WERE LOST

In Destructive Fires in and Around New York.

BLACK HAND BLAMED

Conflagration is Believed to have been Started by a Bomb—It was in an Italian Grocery First Explosion was Heard

ABOVE THIS WAS A TENEMENT

New York, July 29.—Shocking loss of human life and destruction of property worth more than $1,000,000 were caused by fire in New York and its immediate vicinity in the twenty-four hours ended at 8 o'clock this morning.

Twenty persons are dead and fifteen suffered from serious injury as a result of the burning of a six story double tenement in Christie street, and heavy financial loss resulted from the destruction of the Long Beach hotel at Long Beach and the Steeplechase part and other property at Coney Island Sunday. In addition the steamship Hamilton, of the Old Dominion line, came into port with part of her hold ablaze. The Hamilton was at her dock before any of the passengers knew there was a fire on board. The flames were extinguished after about $15,000 damage had been done.

The explosion of a bomb placed, the police believe, by agents of the Black Hand, in an Italian grocery store, at No. 223 Christie street, started the fire which swept through the teeming Italian tenement and destroyed the lives of a score of persons and injured fifteen others. The noise of the explosion caused a panic in the densely populated district. The police say that many perished in the flames, fearing to escape to the streets, where they believed death awaited them from the dreaded Black Hand.

A second explosion from a kerosene tank followed, and the whole lower floor was a mass of flames from blazing oil. The fire shot up the stairways, cutting off all escape from those in the bedrooms above. Many rushed to the fire escapes which became clogged with frightened people. The house was filled with dense smoke and the flames rushing upstairs drove the half crazed people toward the roof. The flames killed many as they were about to be rescued from the roof, while others were overcome by smoke. There were many heroic rescues by firemen.

The bodies of the dead were found in all manner of places. Four women were found dead in a closet, where they had rushed to hide from the flames which found them out. The body of a woman was found lying over a child as though she had tried to protect it from the flames. Five bodies were found crowded around one doorway on the top floor, showing that they had been struck down while trying to escape.

HELD DOWN TIGHTLY.

Borough Councilmen Cannot Furnish Supplies of any Kind.

Under a recent act of assembly, councilmen in the different boroughs have no longer the right to furnish supplies. The act says:

"Any burgess or member of council of any borough, or any officer, agent or employe thereof, to be in any way interested, either directly or indirectly in any contract for the sale or furnishing of any supplies or materials to be furnished to or for the use of said borough, or to receive any reward or gratuity from any person interested in such contract or sale; nor shall any such burgess, member of council, officers, agent or employee, of any borough be a member of any partnership, or stockholder, officers of any corporation of any agent or employe of any individual partnership or corporation in any way interested in any contract for the sale of furnishings of any supplies or materials to be furnished to or for the use of or any work to be done for such borough; and any such person violating these provisions, or any of them, shall forfeit his office or appointment in such borough, and also shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof, be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding $500.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Of the Centre County Sabbath School Association.

The annual convention of the Centre County Sunday School Association is being held in the Presbyterian church here Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. There is a large attendance of delegates and the sessions of the convention are very interesting.

The convention was called to order Tuesday at 2 o'clock by President C. L. Gramley. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. B. Stein.

The members of the convention were welcomed to Bellefonte by an eloquent address of welcome by Rev. J. Allison Platts, pastor of the Presbyterian church. It was responded to in a hearty manner by President Gramley of Rebersburg.

Committees were then appointed and enrollment of delegates took place. At 3 o'clock Rev. R. Crittenden, of Bellefonte discussed, "A Model Bible School." The subject was discussed by different delegates.

"The County Association Target," was the subject of a talk by Gen. Sec W. G. Lander, of Philadelphia.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the praise service was conducted by Dr. Platts after which there was scripture by Rev. W. B. Cox.

"The Spirits help in Teaching" was the subject of an address by Rev. S. S. Bergen of Petersburg. General Secretary Landes gave a talk on "A Persuading Personality."

Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. H. Spangler of Bellefonte.

At ten o'clock Rev. Ralph H. Bierstresser of Pine Grove Mills, made an interesting address on the subject, "Should the Association take a Religious Census of Centre county?" The general opinion brought out in the discussion was that it would be a good thing.

A Glimpse beyond the Horizon," was the subject of the next talk by Secretary Landes.

Wednesday afternoon the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. F. W. Barry.

"The Teacher, the Pupils Particular Friend," was the subject ably disgussed by Mrs. J. R. Sechrist of Centre Hall.

"The Organized Bible Class" was handled by Rev. C. F. Hall, Milesburg.

Wednesday evening Rev. C. C. Snavely will discuss "Parental Co-operation with the Primary Teacher in the child's Preparation of the Lesson."

Rev. Ambrose Schmidt will give a talk on "Holding Sabbath School Convention in Rome."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

President—C. L. Gramley, Rebersburg.

Vice President—Rev. W. H. Spangler, Bellefonte.

Secretary—Rev. W, Henry Schuyler, Centre Hall

Treasurer—A. Luckenbach, Bellefonte.

Supt. Home Dept.—Rev. A. Schmidt, Bellefonte.

Supt. Normal Dept.—Rev. G. W. McIlhay, Spring Mills.

Supt. Primary Dept.—Mrs. Wm. Shawley, Yarnell.

Sees Fiance Drown.

Miss Elizabeth Hoffman, daughter of Capt. Thomas H. Hoffman of Selinsgrove was accidentally drowned Monday morning in Lake Winola, near Scranton, after efforts had been made by Dr. James Stein, her fiance, to save her.

During a trip on the lake in a skiff Dr. Stein became ill and decided to return to shore. At the landing the physician jumped out of the boat first leaving Miss Hoffman in the skiff alone. When he alighted on shore he slipped and fell against the boat, rocking it and throwing his betrothed into the deep waters. Neither was able to swim and the girl drowned while Dr. Stein was attempting to save her. The body was recovered in about 45 minutes. Dr. Stein is coroner of Lackawanna county and Miss Hoffman was a trained nurse at Scranton. The pair were to have been married soon.

Cantaloupes Proved Fatal.

Howard, the 4-year-old son of Samuel Biesecker of Altoona died Friday, the result of eating cantaloupes, the cantaloupes were served at breakfast and the boy, being fond of them, ate a goodly share.

During the afternoon he was down town with his mother and became suddenly ill in a store. He sank so rapidly that the attending physician could not rally him, and he died shortly after reaching home. His ailment was diagnosed as cholera infantum due to eating cantaloupes.

PICNICKERS TRAIN WRECKED

The Wreck Occurred a Mile From Isle.

3 KILLED MANY INJURED

The Employees of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad Shops at Dubois

BOUND FOR THE CASCADE PARK.

Butler, July 29.—While 1,075 picnickers, employes of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg railroad shops at Dubois, and their wives and families were laughing and singing, their train was wrecked by a spreading rail six miles northwest of Queen's Junction, at 10 o'clock Saturday. Three men were killed outright. They were: William Dawson, aged 36, married. Harry Bates, aged 25, married. Charles Neal, aged 25, married.

Walter Barkley and Harry Huggins are fatally and ten others seriously injured.

The excursionists were bound for Cascade Park, New Castle. Lunch was being served in the baggage car, next to the train, when the crash came. Twenty persons were in the car. The engine was being run backward, and the light tender left the rails while the train was going 20 miles an hour on a straigh track. The baggage car followed and was jammed into the tender, which had swung around when the engine struck the ditch. The baggage car was wedged into the tender and the occupants were buried in wreckage.

All the injured were in this car, either preparing lunch or eating at the improvised tables. One passenger coach containing seven persons plunged into the ditch and turned over on its side. No one in this car was injured. A second passenge coach left the rails, but was not tipped over. Many hundreds of passengers sustained minor injuries, but joined the others in the work of relieving the injured.

Fireman Bate's body was under the engine and could not be removed until a leg had been amputated. Dawson's body was jammed between the tender and the baggage car. Four of the seriously injured were dug out of the wreckage after half an hour's work.

The wreck was a mile from Isle, the nearest station, and it was 11.57 o'clock before physicians were obtained. Dr. McCullough and Dr. W. C. Tompson, of Prospect, arrived a few minutes before the relief train from Butler, carrying four doctors, reached the spot, 17 miles from this city. The dead and injured were carried to a grove nearby. Owing to the mangled condition of Barkley and Neal the relief work was prolonged, until 1 p. m., when the start was made for the Butler hospital. The excursionists were brought to Butler in the 13 coaches at 2.30 o'clock and left for Dubois.

The mother and wife of William Dawson were on the train, and their grief was pathetic.

Lived Over a Century.

Mrs. Rosanna Jackson, who was probably the oldest woman in Pennsylvania, died Saturday afternoon at the Aged Colored Woman's Home in Williamsport. She was born in Bellefonte in 1804 and was therefore one hundred and three years old when she died. She worked for Governor Curtin 15 years. Her husband, John Jackson, was the first colord preacher in Williamsport. He died a number of years ago. She was the mother of six children only one of whom, John Jackson, is still living. He is seventy-three years of age.

Will Josephine be a Second Johnstown?

Wonderful reports came from Josephine, the Indiana steel town, for which the prediction has been advanced that it will become a second Johnstown. It is stated that a lot was sold there the other day for $3000. The great feature of promise is the six furnaces and rail mill which Cleveland parties are erecting there. Walter Arms, the superintendent is building an $18,000 house. There are a number of DuBois men there in business on the ground floor. The Pennsylvania railroad, it is said, will handle the bulk of the product of the industries. —DuBois Courier.

MRS. ISABELLA STINE.

Passes Away at her home on North Thomas St.

On Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock the angel of death entered the Stine home on North Thomas street and called home to the spirit world the life of Isabella Stine, wife of James A. Stine. She had been ailing for some time and her death was due to dropsy of the kidneys.

The deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fetzer, of Boggs township, and she was born in Boggs township August 10th, 1844, making her age 62 years, 11 months, and 18 days.

She is survived by her husband, James A. Stine, the blind man who keeps the store on Thomas street, and the following children: Harvey R., of Bellefonte; Mrs. Miles Heaton, of Milesburg; Allison W., of Bellefonte; Clair E., of Johnstown; Ellis J. of Bellefonte. One child, Maggie is deceased.

She also leaves the following brothers and sisters: Frank Fetzer of Clearfield, Michael of Johnstown, Mrs. Mary Butler, of Austin, Miss Lizzie Fetzer and Mrs. Susan Creps of Clearfield.

Sunday evening the remains were taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Heaton at Milesburg from which place the funeral services were held on Tuesday at 2 p. m. Interment will be made at the Advent cemetery.

Poorman Family Reunion.

On a recent date the officers of the Poorman family reunion association met at the home of Fleming Poorman, in Boggs Township, and appointed the following committees to prepare for the annual reunion this year:

Committee of arrangements—D. F. Poorman, Oren Poorman, J. Edward Poorman, John T. Watson, Jacob Yarnell and William Walker.

Program—Mrs. Edward Poorman, Mrs. D. F. Poorman, Mrs. Oren Poorman Fleming Poorman and William T. Fetzer. The chairman of the committee by telephone secured as first speaker Joseph Williams, of Williamsport; second speaker, Edward Hancock, of Philipsburg; third speaker, Jacob Yarnell: historian, David C. Poorman; to furnish the music, E. R. Hancock, Mrs. May Poor, Ida Poorman, Mrs. Nettie Poorman Mrs. Ada Lucas; for recitations, Mrs. Claude Poorman, Mrs. Arthur Bedient, Miss Ada Hancock, Miss Amber Confer, Oren Poorman, Martin Fetzer, Charles Poorman and others.

It was decided to hold the reunion this year in Kolbecker's grove, near Milesburg, on Saturday, August 24th. This will be the second annual reunion of the John and Catharine Poorman decendants, the first having been held at the old homestead August 25th, 1906. To the forth coming reunion all the relatives of John and Catharine Poorman, deceased, are invited. Take your baskets and arrange for a day of pleasure.

Written Arithmetic One Hundred Years Old.

At a recent sale of the effects of the late Darius Sechrist a lot of books were purchased by a person who desires that his name be not mentioned. Among the number was an arithmetic belonging to Elizabeth Scott, on the pages of which were written in ink the principles of addition, subtraction, etc. The owner evidently lived in Cumberland county at the time and is dated June 25, 1810, nearly a century ago.

The book is in a good state of preservation and the ink used on its pages must have been of superior quality as it is still bright and clear, and every letter or figure is discernable at a glance. The money table on one page deals with pounds, shilling and pence, which was in use during that period A sample of how sums were multiplied follows.

The reader will note that it is simply doing the work twice to get the result.

For instance: Multiply 200 by 24. In order to get the answer 200 is multiplied by 6 then the answer by 4. There are numerous other peculiarities on its pages and is indeed a valuable relic.

Deer took Bath.

Passengers on Erie mail, westbound, Tuesday morning of this week witnessed an unusual sight and one which many had never seen before. At a point about two miles above Farrandsville three deer were taking a morning bath in the placid waters of the Susquehanna river near the southern shore and as the train sped by the deer simply looked at it and appeared entirely unconcerned. This trio of innocents was composed of two bucks and a doe.

THE HAYWOOD MURDER TRIAL

Senator Borah Replies to Speech of Darrow.

TO JURY ON SATURDAY

Borah Denies all Claims set up by the Defenses Attorney's—Remarkable Co-incidences Noted

HE TWITS THE CHICAGO LAWYER

Boise, Idaho, July 26.—The case of the state of Idaho against William D. Haywood, charged with the murder of Frank Steunenberg, a former governor of the state will rest with judge and jury by Friday night.

Clarence Darrow, after speaking for eleven hours, concluded the final plea for Haywood's life at 4.30 p. m., and at 7 o'clock Thursday evening United States Senator Borah opened the closing argument for the prosecution. He will speak for three sessions, or about seven hours. Judge Fremont Wood will instruct and charge the jury on Saturday morning. At least 1,000 people were unable to find places in the court room.

Senator Borah said he appreciated that the jurors were fatigued. He promised to be as brief as possible under the circumstances. Much of his speech, he declared, would be an answer to speeches of opening counsel.

"The evidence in this case," said the senator, "shows that somewhere in the Western Federation of Miners there is a power which controlled a power which commits crimes. It is proved as clearly as the fact that Frank Steunenberg is dead. Take the 29th of April, 1899, when the members of the Western Federation of Miners walked boldly from their work, organized with military precision went to Wardner and there blew up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill. Mr. Darrow tells you himself that the miners went back next day to their work in the mines. Why did they? Because they believed there was no such thing as law and order in the state of Idaho. Oh, no, gentlemen of the jury; this was not a criminal act; this was not the Western Federation of Miners. What was it? Was it an accident? Jim Shayne was killed. Oh, yes, but he was a "scab," Darrow tells you. The Bunker Hill mine was blown up, oh, yes, but it employed non-union men. Darrow says that whenever you get a thousand men together to go and do a thing, it is something that ought to be done. That may be the rule in Chicago, but it does not go in Idaho.

Darrow has painted Harry Orchard to you as a veritable devil, and I agree with him."

"The counsel for the defense," said Senator Borah, "tell you that Orchard was caught red-handed in the act of killing Steunenberg; that he confessed to save his own neck, and that if he had not confessed the daisies would have been blooming on his grave for a year past. Oh, no, gentlemen of the jury; if Orchard had not confessed, the attorneys for the Western Federation of Miners would be in this court room defending and eulogizing him as a brave man, a member of the great working class and Mr. Richardson would convince you beyond a reasonable doubt that Orchard could not be guilty of the killing of Governor Steunenberg because he was in his room at the Saratoga hotel when the bomb went off."

"I do not know what your verdict will be in this case," he went on, "and I don't believe anybody knows. There is one thing I do know, and that is that you will never get twelve men in the state of Idaho to turn Harry Orchard loose, and you will never get any man as governor to turn him loose. Orchard has been promised no immunity, and if I should ever have anything to do with such a bargain as that I should want the great God to wither my right arm till it fell from its socket. We are not asking for vacarious atonement in this case, like the defense, but we want no compromise. We know one man is guilty; it is for you to determine whether there are others.'

Old Turtle Returns

W. E. Collins, of South Williamsport, on Monday, while in the Bald Eagle mountains came across a turtle that is quite an interesting object, and which Mr. Collins again set free on the south side yesterday. On the bottom of the shell appears the name of Edmund Koch, and the date 1866. Emanuel Weigle put his name on it in 1876, and William Meterer found it and added his name in 1880. Mr. Collins added his name before setting the turtle free.

Dr. Dixon Urges Examination of Mosquitoes

Instructions for warring against the annoying and, at times, dangerous mosquitoes, are given by Health Commissioner Dixon in a pamphlet entitled "The Malaria Mosquito" and the "Rain Barrel mosquito, How They Grow and how to Get Rid of Them." Dr. Dixon says:

"People can get malaria when bitten by a malaria mosquito, and hence the necessity of its examination. And as this particular breed keeps company, especially around stagnant pools, with other mosquitoes that torment and bite with equal annoyance, even though with less harmful results, the thing to do is to make unrelenting war against the whole family. Since the methods of examination in the case of these mere nuisance mosquitoes are the same as are employed in fighting the malaria mosquito, the conquest of the one means the annihilation of the other.

They breed only in water, but only in water that is free from their enemies—fishes and other predacious animals, such as aquatic insects—or in bodies of water that are fringed or covered with vegitation that protects them from the foes.

The breeding of mosquitoes, therefore, is limited to a minimum of the water area of the State that is insignificant compared with the total water area, and for this reason mosquito breeding can be controlled and even be made impossible at an expense far smaller than the amount employed in restoring the health of those who suffer through this menace to health and comfort. In most cases the cause can be permanently removed by filling in or draining or cleaning and stocking with their natural enemies, water areas in which mosquitoes breed, and the application of fuel, oil or kerosene, which does not do away with, but only suspends the cause of the trouble, should be used only until the lasting remedy can be resorted to, or in the very few instances where lest improvment is out of the question.

Since so far as our knowledge of Pennsylvania mosquitoes goes, only the region in the extreme southeastern portion of the state receives immigrant mosquitoes from over a distance of thirty miles, co-operation with committees for from one-half to one mile outside of any community will be sufficent to reduce mosquitoes to minimum if not to point of extermination. Bear in mind, however, that no collection of water is too small and few are too shallow to permit of mosquito breeding. From the rain barrel and the rain gutter on the roof down to the old tin can, pot or pail, or even the hoof prints of cattle every possible receptacle or hole where water can stand must be gotten rid of. It is comparatively useless to drain immense areas and allow these nests to remain. The rain barrel, cistern or well must be screened, the old vessels hammered flat or buried and the rain spouts kept open."

Show Your Colors.

If you have colors that are all right there is no reason for being ashamed or afraid to show them. I should love to hear every one saying with me, "In the name of our God, we will set up our banners." Ps. 20.5 There is where I stand and thank God, I know not what it is to fear even "the gates of hell." Thursday evening, returning home from a day's work not easy to be done, I found awaiting me a letter, bearing a Bellefonte postmark, urging me to move at once in a matter I am sure I would have the backing of the entire righteous element in our city.

Judging from the penmanship, I could not determine whether it was written by a man or woman. There was no signature given, but a cognomen good as nameless. Some money is proffered. Much as I need a little money, I should refuse any amount offered in a case I did not fully understand. The writer of that letter must come to me in person or send me name and address that I can accept without mistake or otherwise the matter drops and I go right on in the direction of my regular work where I find more than I can do even Deo juvante.

128 Spring St. R. CRITTENDEN.
Bellefonte, Pa.

P. S. I shall willingly make any sacrifice possible to further the highest interests in the town of our home residence where I have friends who have never yet failed to help the righteous cause.

A Good Result.

Under the operation of the new Pure Food Laws, baking powders now generally bear on the labels a statement of the ingredients. This is of utmost importance because of the harmful ingredients used in many cases.

Royal Baking Powder is known to be the only baking powder made of Royal Grape Cream of Tarter, and this no doubt explains its greatly increased sale here.

Careful housekeepers are taking advantage of the protection which the Laws afford, and are examining all the reading matter on the back of the label before adopting any brand for use in the home.

When in place of the words "cream of Tarter the words "alum" "alum-num" or "phos-phate-flour" appear among the ingredients they heed the warning and avoid baking powders containing these substitutes.

MURDERER MAY RECOVER

Frank H. Warner Awoke to Consciousness As Second Victim Died

DOWN ON HIS LUCK

He was Probably Temporarily Insane When he Committed the Crime.

TWO PATROLMEN WERE SUSPENDED.

New York, July 25—Almost at the moment that his second victim breathed his last, Frank H. Warner awoke to consciousness and relization of his tragic acts yesterday.

Down on his luck and perhaps temporarily insane, Warner formerly a prosperous batter, shot and killed Esther C. Norling, who once had been his book-keeper and after a wild flight from the police had fired a bullet into the back of his friend, John C. Wilson, a wealthy hatter.

Wilson died at the St. Vincent's hospital last night and as the news of his death reached Bellvue hospital, where Warner is a prisoner, the latter regained senses. Warner was knocked down and badly injured by the crowd that captured him and he had since been in a comatose state.

Wednesday night he replied to brief inquiries, but the physicians in charge did not wish to have him questioned at length. The district attorney's office was notified, however, that Warner might be able to talk later that night. His condition remains critical, but because of his wonderful vitality, it is believed he may recover. It has been found that there is no fracture of the skull as at first believed Concussion of the brain, severe shock and a slight internal hemorrhage are the ailments with which the physicians have to contend.

As a result of an official investigation into the conduct of the policemen who failed to arrest Warner, after he had killed Miss Narling. Police Commissioner Bingham suspended Policemen Stephen S. Walsh and Tracey L. Rosea.

According to the report on which the commissioner acted, Walsh stood twenty minutes in the office building in which the assassin took refuge without making a move to capture Warner, while Rosea failed to pursue and arrest him. Both men will be placed on trial next Thursday.

Lightning Bolt Tears Clothes From Girls.

An electric bolt Tuesday afternoon played a remarkable prank at the homes of J. W Delp and Roy Landers at Huntsville, Ala. It struck the chimney of the Lander's home, and decending into the sitting room, shocked his daughter, Elsie, tearing all the clothes from her body and leaving her unconscious.

Numerous articles of furniture in the room were demolished, and then the bolt jumped to the home of Delp. Delp's daughter was also denuded and left unconcious.

After hitting several articles in the room the bolt struck the chandelier and followed the gas pipe into the earth. A blue mark was left on each girl, but neither was seriously hurt.

The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and, through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

A Kind Examiner.

Sir John Stainer was dearly loved by the students when he was professor of music at Oxford. "As an examiner he was most considerate," said one who studied under him, "and would always do his best to get you 'through.' I remember his asking me a poser in a viva voce examination. He waited patiently for the answer; but, partly through my nervousness no doubt, I could not think of it. At length he exclaimed testily, 'Dear me, how stuffy this room is, to be sure,' and he went and began tugging at the ventilator cord. It was quite two minutes before he got the thing open, and by the time he had sat down again and rearranged his gown I had the answer ready. Comparing notes later in the day with a man who was examined quite soon after me, I told him how the ventilator had served me. 'How remarkable,' he replied. 'Why, when I was stuck he said, "How extraordinary drafty this place is," and spent quite two minutes in shutting the ventilator.'"—Manchester Guardian.

The Razor In Disrepute.

"And he told her all his heart, and said unto her, there hath not come a razor upon mine head, for I have been a Nazarite unto God from my mother's womb; if I be shaven, then my strength will go from me, and I shall become weak and be like other men."—Judges xvi, 17.

Hair on man or brute is a sign of strength. He who desires to keep at a safe distance from dentists, let him keep also at a great distance from the knife of the barber. To shave is an act against nature. Provoke nature, and in return nature will provoke you.

Said Daniel Webster: "—— the razor! It has taught me to curse. It has cost me more time and more trouble than all my speeches."

Rufus Choate, the lawyer, called the razor an instrument invented by Lucifer to fill up hell with barristers.

Edward Everett never used profane language, but before shaving he would invariably give vent to all sorts of French barbarisms.

Jordan Water.

There is a general impression that the Jordan water which is used at royal baptisms is taken from the sacred stream, put into a bottle, hermetically sealed and left untouched until the bottle is opened by the officiating priest. As a matter of fact, the water which flows out of the lake of Galilee and descends a rocky gorge to a level far below that of the Mediterranean is full of organic substances. If a bottle be filled with the water and kept tightly corked for a few days it turns perfectly black and offers to the nostrils all the odors of the tropics. The precaution is therefore taken of boiling the water and straining it before it is sealed up, and this is why the baptismal water always possesses the crystal clearness which one notices on these ceremonial occasions.—Modern Society.

The Undertaker's Shop.

"The one thing in New York that I can't get used to," said the country visitor, "is the manifold uses to which undertakers put their shops. I used to be of the opinion that the only possible errand a person could have at an undertaker's was to purchase funeral supplies, but in this town I find that people go there for all sorts of purposes. They go to vote, to get married and to transact all the legal business that a notary public is capable of transacting. Yesterday I even saw a party eating luncheon in an undertaker's establishment. They had come into town apparently to attend a funeral and instead of patronizing a restaurant they calmly munched their midday meal in the midst of those lugubrious surroundings."—New York Globe.

Books Written In Jail.

Jail seems to be a good place in which to write books. Literary men surpass themselves there. John Bunyan wrote "Pilgrim's Progress" in jail. Cervantes wrote "Dox Quixote" in prison. Defoe laid the plans for "Robinson Crusoe" during a term of confinement imposed on him for the writing of a pamphlet called "The Shortest Way With the Dissenters." Leigh Hunt wrote "Rimini" in jail. Sir Walter Raleigh during his fourteen years' imprisonment in the Tower of London wrote his excellent "History of the World." Silvio Pellico and Tasso both did their best work in jail.

Food and Digestion.

One of the biggest mistakes about food which people make is to forget that the true value of food to anybody is the measure of its digestibility. Half a pound of cheese is vastly more nourishing, as regards its mere composition, than half a pound of beef; but while the beef will be easily digested, and thus be of vast service to us, the cheese is put out of court altogether for ordinary folks by reason of its indigestibility. We should bear this rule in mind when we hear people comparing one food with another in respect of their chemical value.

A Careful Official.

"Some years ago," remarked a physician, "when the people in the south feared that an epidemic of yellow fever would spread from Cuba to this country the health board officer of a certain southern city was so careful to keep out the infection that he gave orders to disinfect all telegrams received from Havana."

"This Is Thim."

Not in a thousand years will blood forget blood, even in this great nation of ours.

The column had been winding all morning through open country. Now it was approaching close woodland and high grass. The captain of the company, acting as advance guard, knew that trouble was probably lying ahead. He called to him his pet sergeant—the man he had been saving through all the day for the time when a "best" man was needed.

"Sergeant O'Hare," he said, "I want you to pick out from the company six men you choose and go ahead as a point. You can have any sort you want—only choose the best and know I think we will be fired on from those low hills."

Sergeant O'Hare's eyes searched the company.

"Sullivan!" he called. "McCarthy! O'Donnell! Moriarity! McGinnis!" He hesitated. His glance wandered uneasily up and down the line. Big honest Swedes, burly Teutons, lanky Yankees, there were in plenty. But where—oh, yes, there on the left of the line—that bright eyed, pug nosed, red headed little beggar, nodding and imploring attention with his twisted up face. The sergeant's brow cleared.

"Lynch!" he called, with a sigh of relief. "This is thim, sorr," he added, turning to the captain.—Outing.

The Remarkable Part.

One day some Americans on a visit to Wales expressed a wish to see a certain old and historic church. The incumbent was only too pleased to show them around, especially as he believed it would end in a donation being given to his parochial funds. He is as proud of the school as he is of the church and finished up by asking them in there also and inviting them to question the scholars.

One of the party accepted the invitation.

"Can you tell me, little boy," he said to one lad, "who George Washington was?"

"Iss, surr," said he; "he wass a 'Merrycan gen'ral."

"Quite right," said the American. "And can you tell me what George Washington was remarkable for?"

"Iss, surr; he was remarkable 'cos 'e wass a 'Merrycan an' told the trewth."

The American didn't question further.—Cassell's Magazine.

Finds Pot of Gold.

On Friday, July 5th, Miss Imogene McMillen, the only sister of Major C. G. McMillen, of Dayton, Ohio, but formerly landlord of the Brockerhoff house in this place, died at her home in Dayton. She was a woman of various eccentricities of character and this was clearly shown when her will was read after the funeral in which she set aside the sum of thirty cents a week for the support of a favored horse and cat. Miss McMillen owned considerable real estate and, after making a number of small bequests, she left the bulk of her fortune to her brother, Major C. G. McMillen, as the closest surving relative her family physician Dr. G. W. Miller, having been appointed administrator of the estate.

Very little cash was found in the bank to her credit and during the week following her death various stories were told of her distrust of banks while the fact leaked out that only recently she had withdrawn five thousand dollars in gold from one of the Dayton banks, having, carried the money away in a tin bucket. These stories led to a suspicion that Miss McMillen must of had money hid in or around the house and on Friday, July 12th, just one week after her death, the administrator of the estate, Dr. Miller, with Major McMillen and others made a systematic search of the house. Every room was gone over thoroughly, the wall sounded and the floors examined without revealing any secret hiding place. Finally the searching party went into the cellar and after a half hour's diligent search, in which almost the entire ground floor had been gone over, found in one corner a glass pot buried in the ground which when brought to light was found to be practically filled with glittering gold pieces. When the money was counted it was found that the vessel contained exactly fourteen thousand dollars.

The money was at once deposited in the bank and, with the bulk of her other property, will be inherited by Major McMillen, a fact his many friends in Bellefonte are pleased to know and on which they extend him heartiest congratulations,

The Scrap Book

In Boston.

Boston has some famous family names, in which the city in general and the possessors of the names in particular take a proper pride. Two such surnames are Cabot and Hallowell. A young Hallowell went to visit a young Cabot. When put to bed by his hostess he thus began his evening prayer, "Our father, who art in heaven, Cabot be thy name." Being asked why he varied from the common form, the innocent replied: "At home I always say, 'Hallowell be thy name,' but I thought it more polite here to say Cabot."—Judge.

A BOY'S MOTHER.

My mother, she's so good to me.
Ef I was good as I could be,
I couldn't be as good. No, sir;
Can't any boy be good as her!

She loves me when I am glad or mad,
She loves me when I'm good or bad,
An' what's the funniest thing, she says
She loves me when she punishes.

I don't like her to punish me.
That don't hurt, but it hurts to see
Her cry. Nen I cry, an' nen
We both cry an' be good again.

She loves me when she cuts and sews
My little coat and Sunday clothes.
An' when my pa comes home to tea
She loves him 'most as much as me.

She laughs an' tells him all I said
An' grabs me up an' pats my head,
An' I hug her an' hug my pa
An' love him purt' nigh much as ma.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

A Bashful Young Man.

He called on a young lady recently to spend the evening and when he got ready to leave he realized that a heavy rain was falling. He had no umbrella or rubber coat and when the girl's father asked him to remain at the house he readily consented. The next morning when he was invited to a seat at the table he very reluctantly accepted. He was very nervous and agitated. He sat opposite a mirror and discovered that he had forgotten to comb his hair. Then he dropped his fork on the floor and as he stooped to pick it up he upset his coffee. Matters went from bad to worse until finally in despair the young man quit eating and put his hands under the table. The loose end of the table cloth was lying in his lap and when he touched it he turned pale. He thought it was his shirt and that in his nervous excitement when dressing he had forgot to put the garment inside his trousers. That accounted for the smiles and embarrassment. There was no time to lose. He hurriedly stuffed the supposed shirt into his trousers.

Ten minutes later when the family arose from the table there was a crash. The dishes lay in a broken mass upon the floor. The young man pulled three feet of table cloth out of his pants and fled through the back door. He is yet in the woods back of his home.—Jackson County Argus.

Wouldn't Have Been Strange.

Two women were strangers to each other at a reception. After a few moments' desultory talk the first said rather querulously:

"I don't know what's the matter with that tall blond gentleman over there. He was so attentive awhile ago, but he won't look at me now."

"Perhaps," said the other, "he saw me come in. He's my husband."—Ladies' Home Journal.

That Settled It.

A story is told of a very popular cavalry officer. He was being tried for drunkenness, and among other witnesses on his behalf was his Irish soldier servant.

The court, anxious to give the officer every chance, put several questions to this witness with a view to eliciting any facts that might be in his master's favor.

When the Irishman said that his master, on going to bed, had expressed a wish to be called early, the court was distinctly pleased. A man who gave special instructions to be called early could not, they argued to themselves, have been drunk.

Hoping to get favorable particulars, they put a further question.

"And why did Major —— wish to be called early?"

Then, "Faith, an' he tould me it was because he was to be queen of the May," promptly came the answer.

That settled it.—Baltimore Telegram.

A Street Incident.

A reporter called to a little bootblack near the city hall to give him a shine. The little fellow came rather slowly for one of that lively guild and placed his box down under the reporter's foot. Before he could get his brushes out another larger boy ran up and calmly pushing the little one aside, said, "Here, you sit down, Jimmy."

The reporter at once became indignant at what he took to be a piece of outrageous bullying and sharply told the newcomer to "clear out."

"Oh, dat's all right, boss," was the reply, "I'm only goin' to do it fur him. You see he's been sick in the hospital for mor'n a month and can't do much work yet, so us boys all turn in and give him a lift when we can—savy?"

"Is that so, Jimmy?" asked the reporter, turning to the smaller boy.

"Yes, sir," wearily replied the boy, and as he looked up the pallid, pinched face could be discerned even through the grime that covered it. "He does it fur me, if you'll let him."

"Certainly, go ahead," and as the bootblack used the brush the reporter plied him with questions. "You say all the boys help him in this way?"

"Yes, sir. When they ain't got no job themselves, and Jimmy gets one, they turns in and helps him, 'cause he ain't very strong yet, you see."

"What percentage do you charge him on the job?"

"Hey?" queried the youngster. "I don't know what you mean."

"I mean, what part of the money do you give Jimmy, and how much do you keep out of it?"

"You bet yer life I don't keep none. I ain't no such sneak as that."

"So you give it all to him, do you?"

"Yes, I do. All the boys give up what they get on his job. I'd like to catch any feller sneaking it on a sick boy, I would."

The shine being completed, the reporter handed the urchin a quarter, saying, "I guess you're a pretty good fellow, so you keep 10 cents and give the rest to Jimmy, there."

"Can't do it, sir. It's his customer. Here Jim."

He threw him the coin and was off like a shot after a customer for himself.

Clay's Joke on Adams.

When John Quincy Adams and Henry Clay were at Ghent in 1814 in association with Albert Gallatin, James A. Bayard and Jonathan Russell, appointed to negotiate a treaty of peace with Great Britain, they were on very intimate terms of friendship and occupied the same apartments. Mr. Clay was always a very gallant man and in many respects the very opposite of Mr. Adams, who, though studiously polite to every lady, avoided even the appearance of familiarity. The young girl who had charge of the rooms of the peace commissioners was very pretty and modest and was treated with great respect by all of them. But Mr. Clay would now and then indulge in compliments to her beauty and on one occasion playfully solicited from her a kiss. Of course he was refused the favor, but in relating the incident to his associates he could not forego a joke on Mr. Adams, who had what are known as watery or tear suffused eyes. As Mr. Clay repeated it the conversation following the refusal of the kiss ran as follows:

"I presume you would not deny Mr Adams such a favor?"

"Indeed I would," she replied. "I have just done so and left him with tears in his eyes."

She Wanted to Watch Him.

"And will you have gas, madam?" inquired the dentist, as a stout, elderly woman entered his office.

"Well," she replied, with a doubtful glance at the doctor, "you don't suppose I'm going to let you tinker about me in the dark, do you?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Schott-Nott Duel.

This story comes down from an old scrap book of 1826. The papers which have recently started it anew on its rounds have located it in Texas. The original duel was fought in or near Philadelphia by Alexander Schott and John S. Nott. Nott was shot, and Schott was not. In this case it is better to be Schott than Nott. There was a rumor that Nott was not shot, and Schott avows that he shot Nott, which proves either that the shot which Schott shot at Nott was not shot or that Nott was shot notwithstanding. Circumstanial evidence is not always good. It may be made to appear on trial that the shot Schott shot shot Nott, or, as accidents with firearms are frequent, it may be possible that the shot Schott shot shot Schott himself, when the whole affair would resolve itself into its original elements, and Schott would be shot and Nott would be not. We think, however, that the shot Schott shot shot not Schott, but Nott. Anyway, it was hard to tell who was shot and who was not.

Just the Other Way.

"I am delighted," said the old friend who had called, "to find that you agree with your husband in everything, Mrs. Henpeck."

"Indeed!" answered that estimable lady. "If you will take the pains to investigate our domestic relations, sir, you will find that it is Mr. Henpeck who agrees with me in everything."

There are some women who seem to be perennially youthful. The grown daughters are companions as well as children, and the color in the mother's cheeks, the brightness in her eyes, the roundness of her form, all speak of abounding health. What is her secret? She is at the middle age of life when so many women are worn, wasted and faded, and yet time has only ripened her charms. The secret of this matronly health and beauty may be told in the brief phrase, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The general health of woman is so intimately related to the local health of the delicate womanly organs, that where these are diseased, the whole body must suffer. "Favorite Prescription" dries the debilitating drains, heals ulceration and inflammation, cures female weakness and imparts to the delicate female organs natural vigor and vitality. Women who have lost their health and their beauty have been made "roboust and rosy cheeked" by the use of this marvelous medicine.

They Loved Them Just the Same.

There was a youth of scanty means
Who loved a summer maid;
Ice-cream and soda she adored,
Bon-bons and lemonade.
Excursions, too, she doted on.
So he could never claim
A penny when the week was o'er,
But he loved her just the same.

A man who got a pretty wife
Soon found her tresses bright,
Her pearly teeth and perfect form,
Were laid aside at night.
He saw her blushes in a box,
And thought it was a shame
That he, alas! had been deceived,
But he loved her just the same.

A wealthy dude was sure the girl
He wished to win and wed
Would jilt her poor but worthy swain
And take his gold instead.
He learned that money cannot quench
True love's immortal flame:
The maiden coolly turned him down,
But he loved her just the same.

Our dearest friends may play us false,
Our children go astray,
Our wives contract a score of bills
We never hope to pay,
Our husbands flirt with chorus girls,
And every one we blame
For all our bittor sighs and tears,
But we love them just the same.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Put a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

HIDDEN DANGER.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Bellefonte Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of ediment and irregular of passage.

Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cures sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Bellefonte proof.

Mrs. Nancy Davis, of 246 East Logan Street, says: "I suffered a bad fall some years ago when living n Rochester. I thought at first that I had broken my back. I was unable to get up without assistance and from that time I suffered for years with a weak back and excruciating pains through the loins and through the small of my back. Sometimes I was completely prostrated and helpless. Doctors and medicines failed to help me and the pain continued until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. I took only a few doses before I began to feel better and when I had continued using them for a while I was thoroughly cured. My back regained its strength and the pain left me. I have had no return of the trouble since."

Troubles of the stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of is treating symptom only. Symptomt treatment is treating the result of your ailment the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and Kidneys, as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restoartive has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by All Dealers.

A little Kodol taken occasionally, especially after eating, will relieif sour stomach, belching and heartburn. J. B. Jones, Newport, Tenn. writer; "I am sure one 3 dollar bottles of your Kodol positively cured me of of dyspepsia, and I can reccommend it as that was three years ago and I haven't been bothered since with it." Kodol is guaranteed to give relief. Sold by Green's Pharmacy.

Two Dyspeptics

If you are too fat it is because your food turns to fat instead of muscle—strength. If you are too lean the fat producing foods that you eat are not properly digested and assimilated.

Lean, thin, stringy people do not have enough Pepsin in the stomach, while fat people have too much Pepsin and not enough Pancreatine.

Kodol
For Dyspepsia

contains all the digestive juices that are found in a healthy stomach, and in exactly those proportions necessary to enable the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all foods that may be eaten. Kodol is not only a perfect digestant, but it is a reconstructive, tissue building tonic as well. Kodol relieves Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Palpitation of the Heart and Constipation. You will like it.

Digests What You Eat

Rests the stomach, rebuilds the tissues and gives firm flesh.

SNAKES A PLENTY.

Three Copperheads and Four Blacksnakes in one Wheat Field.

John B. Harris who owns the last farm on the Nittanyvalley side of Fishing creek in Lamar gap this week cut a five acre field of grain and in it killed three copperhead and four blacksnakes. How many escaped he does not know.

Tom Jennings, while whipping Fishing creek for trout on Friday, heard his red Irish setter dog set up a tremendous howl in the bushes near the stream. The animal ran up to him holding out one leg from which blood was trinkling. Knowing at once that the animal had been bitten by a snake, Mr. Jennings started in pursuit of the reptile which he found where he expected, and which proved to be a copperhead as thick as his arm and all of five feet long. The moment the snake saw Mr. Jennings it charged, and he not wishing to prolong the interview, scratched gravel for the water and jumped headlong into the stream, followed closely by his dog who was suffering agonizing pain.

Soon after the attendance the dog disappeared entirely and could not be located until 9 o'clock at night when he was found in the bushes near the camp with his leg swoolen to the size of a hitching post. Nothing could be done for the poor fellow as it was not to be obtained a doctor, and he was expected to die, but the next day the swelling disappeared and on Monday he was out again hunting more snakes.

Verdict of Not Guilty Finally Ends the Haywood Trial.

Boise, Idaho, July 28.—Into the bright sunlight of a beautiful Sabbath morning, William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, walked a free man today, acquitted of the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg.

Probability of acquittal was freely predicted after Judge Fremont Wood read his charge, which was regarded as strongly favoring the defense in its interpretation of the laws of conspiracy, circumstantial evidence and the corroboration of a confessed accomplice. It was also freely predicted that, in the event of Haywood's acquittal, the state would abandon the prosecution of his associates, Charles H. Moyer, president of the federation, and George A. Pettibone, of Denver. Statements from counsel and from Governor Gooding, issued today, dispel this view of the situation. Governor Gooding said:

"The verdict is a great surprise to me and I believe to all citizens of Idaho who have read or heard the evidence in the case. I have done my duty. I have no regret as to any action I have taken, and my conscience is clear. As long as God gives me strength, I shall continue my efforts for government by law and for organized society.

"The state will continue a vigorous prosecution of Moyer and Pettibone and Adams and of Simpkins when apprehended. There will be neither hesitation nor retreat."

Application will be made to Judge Wood tomorrow to admit Moyer and Pettibone to bail, and it was said that as to Moyer, against whom the state is admitted to have its weakest case, a favorable consideration will be given to the application.

Not the least interesting comment made upon the verdict was that of Harry Orchard, the confessed murderer of Steunenberg and the witness on whom the state chiefly relied to prove its charge of a conspiracy among certain members of the Western Federation of Miners. When told at the state penitentiary that Haywood had been acquitted, Orchard said,

"Well, I have done my duty. I have told the truth. I could do no more. I am ready to take any punishment that may be meted out to me for my crime, and the sooner it comes the better."

It was after being out for 21 hours that the jury, which at first had been divided, 8 to 4 for acquittal and then seemed deadlocked at 10 to 2, finally came to an agreement shortly after the first faint streaks of the coming day showed the giant hills which wall Boise to the north and east.

Gridiron Heroes Now Oil Magnates on Auto Tour.

Charles E. Auli, a former Pittsburg boy and who at one time was one of the star half-backs on the State College foot ball team, and "Chauncy" Bill Stuart, whose home was at State College, also former fullback on the State team, but who later gained renown as a base ball player, left Bellefonte Wednesday in their big 40-horse-power White Steamer for Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

The two young men are now located in Skiatook, Indian Territory, where they leased some land and have been among the lucky ones in making a strike in oil, having put down one well which when blown started in by spouting 1,500 barrels a day and has since increased the flow. They are now engaged in putting down additional wells in the same strata and expect ere long to be among the biggest producers in that new oil territory. The young men went there with merely money enough to develope their lease and now they are reaping the coin at the rate of $1,500 a day.

Coming east they stopped at Cleveland where they bought a 40 H. P. White steamer and with Mr. Stuart's mother sister and sister-in-law, who were visiting in Cleveland toured to this place.

From Bellefonte they will go to Philadelphia and thence to Atlantic City for a week's stay, after which they will go to the Jamestown exposition and then spend six weeks or more in touring from one place of interest to another in the east, expecting to leave about the middle of September for a through run to Skiatook.

The Scrap Book

The Way He Heard It.

A sailor who had been to a church service, where he heard some fine music, was afterward descanting upon an anthem which had given him great pleasure.

A listening shipmate finally asked, "I say, Bill, what's a hanthem?"

"What!" exclaimed Bill. "Do you mean to say you don't know what a hanthem is?"

"Not me."

"Well, then, I'll tell yer. If I was to tell yer, 'Ere, Bill, give me that 'andspike,' that wouldn't be a hanthem. But if I was to say, 'Bill, Bill, Bill, give, give, give me that, Bill, give me, give me that 'and, give me that 'and, 'andspike, spike, spike, Bill, give me that, that 'and, 'andspike, 'and, 'andspike, spike, spike, spike. Ahmen, ahmen. Billgivemethat'andspike, spike. Ahmen!' why, that would be a hanthem!"

PLANT A TREE.

He who plants a tree
Plants a hope;
Rootlets up through fibers blindly grope;
Leaves unfold unto horizons free.
So man's life must climb
From the clods of time
Unto heavens sublime.
Canst thou prophesy, thou little tree,
What the glory of thy boughs shall be?

He who plants a tree,
He plants love;
Tents of coolness spreading out above
Wayfarers he may not live to see.
Gifts that grow are best;
Hands that bless are blest;
Plant! Life does the rest.
Heaven and earth help him who plants a tree,
And his work its own reward shall be.
—Lucy Larcom.

The Star of the Play.

A proud father was helping his children with a little parlor play at home in whose plot courtships and weddings played a leading part. During the progress of the play he went behind the scenes, where he found his youngest offspring sitting quietly in a corner.

"Why, Marie," asked he, "have you been left out of the play? Why aren't you on with the others?"

"I'm not left out," indignantly denied Marie. "I'm the baby waitin' to be born!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Lincoln's Answer.

Early in the civil war a delegation of clergymen from New England called on Mr. Lincoln to urge him to emancipate the slaves, assuring him that he could not expect the favor of God on his cause so long as he tolerated slavery. When the spokesman had ceased Mr. Lincoln inquired,

"How many legs has a sheep?"

The speaker raised his hands and the whole body of the delegation showed signs of disgust, as much as to say: "We always heard he was a buffoon." But the speaker answered, "Why, four, Mr. President."

"Now," said Mr. Lincoln, "if you call a sheep's tail a leg how many legs would he have?"

The answer, of course, was five.

"You all agree to this?" said Mr. Lincoln.

They nodded assent.

"No," said the president, "you are wrong. A sheep has only four legs, and calling his tail a leg does not make it a leg. And for me to declare that the slaves shall be free will not make them free before the country is ready for it."

His Own Business.

Citiman—Look here, sir, didn't you warrant the horse you sold me yesterday to be without fault?

David Harum—Yes. Ain't he?

Citiman—No, sir, he is not. He interferes.

David Harum—Wall, I don't see as you hev any reason fur complainin' about that. He don't interfere with anybody but himself, does he?—Lippincott's.

The Host Was Pleased.

Edward Everett Hale was one of the guests at a millionaire's dinner.

The millionaire was a free spender, but he wanted full credit for every dollar put out.

And as the dinner progressed he told his guests what the more expensive dishes had cost. He dwelt especially on the expense of the large and beautiful grapes, each bunch a foot long, each grape bigger than a plum. He told down to a penny what he had figured it out that the grapes had cost him apiece.

The guests looked annoyed. They ate the expensive grapes charily. But Dr. Hale, smiling, extended his plate and said:

"Would you mind cutting me off about $1.87 worth more, please?"—New York Tribune.

Nellie's Joke.

A little girl in a western village, who discovered the moon in the sky one day and who had never seen that phenomenon before, rushed into the house exclaiming, "Oh, mamma, mamma, I've got the best joke on 'our Father which art in heaven.'" "Why, Nellie, Nellie," said the astonished and shocked mother, "what do you mean?" "Why, he—he—he's forgot to take in the moon."

A Captain of Industry.

A Presbyterian minister of Buffalo had a young son, a lad about ten years of age. He was endeavoring to bring him up in the way he should go, and was one day asked by a friend what he intended to make of him. In reply he said:

"I am watching the indications. I have a little [illegible] I propose trying with the boy. It is this: I am going to place in my parlor a Bible, an apple and a silver dollar. Then I am going to leave the room and call in the boy. I am going to watch him from some convenient place without letting him know that he is seen. Then, if he chooses the Bible, I shall make a preacher of him; if he takes the apple, a farmer he shall be; but if he chooses the dollar I will make him a business man."

The plan was carried out. The arrangements were made and the boy called in from his play. After a little while the preacher and his wife softly entered the room. There was the youngster. He was seated on the Bible, in one hand was the apple, from which he was just taking a bite, and in the other he clasped the silver dollar. The good man turned to his consort. "Wife," he said, "the boy is a hog. He'll be a captain of industry in spite of anything we can do."

The Mosquito In a New Light.

It was the first night Pat and Mike spent in America. They secured a small room at a boarding house. There were no screens at the windows. Being afraid of robbers, Pat and Mike decided to let the light burn all night. Soon the mosquitoes became intolerable.

"Let's turn out the light so they can't find us," said Pat.

In a short while some fireflies flitting about entered the room.

Never having seen any before, Mike exclaimed:

"Hully gee, Pat! They're comin' after us with their lanterns!"

Her Curiosity Was Aroused.

It was the mayor of a western city who received the following letter of inquiry from an eastern resident:

Kind and respected Cir: I see in a paper that a man named John Sipes was attacted and et up by a bare whose cubs he was trying to git when the she bare come up and stopt him by eatin him up in the mountaines near your town. What I want to know is did it kill him or was he only partly et up and is he from this place and all about the bare. I don't know but what he is a distant husband of mine. My first husband was of that name and I supposed he was killed in the war but the name of the man the bare et being the same I thought it might be him after all an I ought to know it if he wasn't killed either in the war or by the bare for I have been married twice since and there ought to be divorce papers got out by him or me. He sings base an has a spread eagle tattoed on his front chest and a ankor on his right arm which you will know him by if the bare did not eat up these sines of its being him. If alive don't tell him I am married to Joe White for he never liked Joe. Mebbe you'd better let on as if I am ded but find out all you can about him without his knowing anything what it is for. That is if the bare did not eat him all up. If it did I don't see as you can do anything and you needn't take no trouble. My respecks to your family and please ancer back.

P. S.—Was the bare killed. Also was he married again and did he leave any propty wuth me laying claims to.

Senator Call's "Snagged Pants."

In his day Senator Call was the most popular man in Florida.

When congress adjourned Mr. Call would go home, put on a gray hickory shirt, a pair of ragged breeches, a coat with large holes at the elbows, an old tan colored, perspiration stained slouch hat and get into his sulky for an electioneering tour through the state.

He would travel over the sand hills and through the pine forests, stopping at every cabin "to pass the time of day." He kissed all the children, asked for a "snack" to eat and when the farmer's wife offered him butter he always preferred sorghum on his bread. When night overtook him he "put up" at the nearest farmhouse, no matter how uninviting it might be, and when he went to bed held out his ragged trousers to his host, saying:

"I snagged my pants in the brush today, and I'd be under everlasting obligations if your good wife would mend them for me."

Of course the woman would sit up all night to patch the garments of a United States senator, and she put in her prettiest stitches, but he would rip off the patch in a day or two and play the same game in the next county. The name of the women in Florida who have mended Senator Call's pants is legion, and it is the proudest event in their lives.

A Catch Question.

Of Bishop Short, who held the see of St. Asaph, many curious stories are told. Occasionally he put questions to candidates for ordination that apparnetly had no connection with the discharge of their parochial duties. They tested probably their wit or tact, two necessary qualifications to public men, but nothing more. One such question proposed by the bishop was the following: "Which has the greatest number of legs, a cat or no cat?"

As might be expected, this created a titter, but the bishop would not take a laugh as the answer, and consequently he repeated the question and desired some one to solve the problem. At last one of the candidates, smiling, said, "I should think, my lord, a cat."

"No," retorted the bishop; "there you are wrong, for a cat has four legs, and no cat has five."—London Telegraph.

Hardened by Sulphuric Acid.

Hardening an ordinary drill in sulphuric acid, states the English Mechanic, makes an edge that will cut tempered steel or facilitate cutting hard rock. The acid should be poured into a flat bottomed vessel to a depth of about one-eighth of an inch. The point of the drill is heated to a dull cherry red and dipped in the acid to that depth. This makes the point extremely hard, while the remainder remains soft. If the point breaks, reharden, but with a little less acid in the vessel.

Sheridan's Double Marriage.

It was in 1857 that the Gretna Green marriages were made illegal. A glance at its registers may yet inspire the novelist of the future. One entry will be sure to puzzle. Twice within a few days occurs the record of the marriage of Richard Brinsley Sheridan to Miss Grant. There was only one R. B. S., only one bride for the same gentleman. The double entries are not the result of any blunder on the part of the Rev. Mr. Vulcan. The parties were really twice married at Gretna Green. Arriving on a Sunday they were duly wedded, and sped away to Edinburgh. There, however, Sheridan chanced to glance at a newspaper in which appeared the lucubrations of a lawyer. In these plainly stated was the fact that no contract executed on a Sunday is binding. Clearly, then, their wedding was not legal. Back to Gretna Green they scurried, to be remarried on a week day and leave the dual record to perplex later generations of the records.—St. James' Gazette.

The Buzzard In Flight.

There can be no doubt that the buzzard is the living aeroplane in perfection. It cannot sail against the wind except as other birds do—by sheer power of moving wings—but it can sail at amazing speed before the wind, at right angles to the wind and can sail within a few points of the wind.

When there is no wind its flight is clumsy—not much of an improvement on the flying of a hen. Authors are wont to describe the buzzard as sailing in the sky on days when the earth perspires beneath a sultry, still atmosphere. But it will also be remembered that these authors invariably describe the buzzard as being "a speck in the brassy heavens." As a matter of fact, that is just the point of the buzzard's aerial knowledge. When there is no breeze close to the earth it is always to be observed roosting in a tree or flying laboriously into the zenith until it finds an upper current, where it can navigate without labor.—New York Times.

Bones and Their Places.

It was a colloquy at a north side butcher's shop. "Oh," said the little woman, "that's an awful big bone in that small steak. I don't like to have to pay for all bone."

"Yes'm," said the butcher politely, but with a touch of irony in his answer, "that do seem to be a good deal of bone, but the animals what's comin' to this market now seems to have more or less bone in 'em. And really as animals is built now I don't see how they can get along without bones."

"That may all be true," said the little woman, and there was a wicked twinkle in her eye, "but this morning I found a good sized bone in the sausage, and I leave it to you, honest now, don't you think that is going a little too far?"

And the butcher could not say a word in reply.—Indianapolis News.

Incidental Music.

One afternoon a couple from an adjoining town presented themselves to a Boston divine and asked to be married just as he was about to enter the pulpit to conduct an afternoon service. The minister replied that he regretted that he could not at that moment comply with their wish, but that immediately upon the conclusion of the service he would take pleasure in performing the ceremony. The lovers after demurring seated themselves in the rear of the church. When the minister had finished the service he made the following announcement: "The parties who are to be joined in matrimony will present themselves at the chancel immediately after the singing of hymn 415, 'Mistaken Souls That Dream of Heaven!'"—Exchange.

Big Jumps by Rabbits.

How fast do hares and rabbits run? Perhaps you have wondered while out gunning and watched the elusive animals speeding away. According to J. G. Millais, the length of a hare's stride is about four feet, while that of a rabbit is about two feet. Under conditions of fear the hare is said to leap ten to twelve feet, some authorities claiming that it can jump ditches ten to twenty-five feet in width. A hare can jump upward perpendicularly five feet. Rabbits can make leaps of six or seven feet horizontally, but cannot jump higher than three feet. When compelled to do so, it is said, rabbits can swim as well as dogs.—Philadelphia North American.

A Bright Bird.

The cuckoo is as likely to steal its nest as to make it, but this fact does not take from the point of the following pun, quoted from Short Stories:

A young Englishman being asked at dinner whether he would have some bird's nest pudding, said, turning to his hostess: "Ah, yes. Bird's nest pudding, and what kind of a bird may have made it?"

"Oh, it was the cook who made it," was her prompt reply.

Not Always.

"Remember, my boy," said Uncle James as he gave Bobby a coin, "that if you take care of the pennies the shillings will take care of themselves."

Bobby looked a trifle dubious.

"I do take care of the pennies," he replied, "but as soon as they get to be shillings pa takes care of 'em."—London Tit-Bits.

A GIRL'S LETTER.

Miss Rose Hurst, 733 Harris Street, Appleton, Wis., Writes Something of Interest to All Women.

Read What She Says:

"I WANT to say a word for Peruna for systemic catarrh and trust others who read this may try it and receive the same good from it that I did.

"I had been ailing for a long time and nothing seemed to do me any good, although I tried many doctors and many medicines. I had become so bad that there was no pleasure in living.

"I was finally asked by a friend to try Peruna, which I did, with many misgivings. What was my delight, after taking the first bottle, to see a great change for the better and I kept on improving until completely recovered.

"I now feel like a new woman. It has done wonders for me and I gladly recommend it to others."—Rose Hurst.

No ailing woman can fail to be interested in the above testimonial. Miss Hurst was persuaded by a friend to try Peruna, and she is now perfectly well and feels like another woman. Such is her story in brief.

CHALLENGE FROM C. M. PARRISH

C. M. Parrish is seeking the worst case of dyspeps a or constipation in Bellefonte or vicinity to test Dr. Howard's new specific for the cure of those diseases.

So confident is he that this remarkable medicine will effect a lasting cure in a short time, that he offers to refund the money should it not be successful.

In order to secure the quickest possible introduction C. M. Parrish will sell a regular fifty cent package of this medicine at half price 25 cents.

This specific of Dr. Howard's will cure sick headach, dizzy feelings, constipation dyspepsia, and all forms of malaria and liver trouble. It does not simply give relief for a time; it makes permanent and complete cures.

It will regulate the bowels, tone up the whole intestinal tract, give you an appetite, make food taste good and digest well and increase vigor. Joy and happiness will take the place of that "don't care whether I live or die" feeling.

Take advantage of C. M. Parrish challenge and secure a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price with his personal guarantee to refund your money if it does not hely you.

TEDDY'S BEAR.

Teddy had one monstrous bear,
It's fur was black as jet;
And yet nowhere where Teddy went
Could that bear be seen, you bet.

It ran away from school one day,
Which was not as the rule;
It made the teacher fret and work
To have the bear leave school,

The children sent for Teddy's bear,
But, the bear refused to come;
It ran around reluctantly,
Till Teddy went from home.

"What makes the bear hate Teddy so'
The sullen teacher cried;
Why, Teddy hates the bear, you know
The children then replied.

The Quiggle—Montgomery Re-union.

The fourth annual reunion of the Quiggle—Montgomery families was held at the Pine campmeeting grounds Friday and, although only about 150 persons were present, the outing was one of the most delightful and interesting ever held by the organization. The inclement weather during the morning kept many from attending and also prevented the exercises scheduled for the forenoon from being held. The exercises were held at 2 o'clock p. m.

The singing of the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," opened the exercises. The Rev. J. Knox, of South Williamsport, offered prayer. The reading of the minutes of last year's meeting and the secretary's report preceded a recitation by Miss Marie Simcox. The Hon. James C. Quiggle, of McElhattan, delivered the principal address of the day. He traced the descent of the Quiggle family from 1736 to the present time, showing that the ancestors were from German stock. After considerable research since the reunion last year he told much of the early history of the family and showed that the name was formerly spelled "Quickel," giving the proper way of spelling the name at present as "Quigel."

After a recitation by Miss Mary Rich, of Lock Haven, addresses were made by Messrs. Walter L. Montgomery, of Harrisburg; Valentine W. Quigel, of Williamsport; R. Hayes Stewart, of Lock Haven; Robert R. C. Quiggle, of Pine; Charles A. Quiggle, of Williamsport, and Colonel Robert H. Grier, Sr., of Oriolo. Mr. Montgomery made a very exhaustive address on the history of the Montgomery family, which was highly appreciated. After a recitation by Miss Anabelle Rich the meeting adjourned.

The election of officers resulted in all of the former officials being re-elected as follows: President, William Hayes Grier, Columbia; vice president, the Hon. James A. Quiggle, McElhattan; secretary and treasurer, John W. Grier, Jersey Shore; executive committee, Robert C. Quiggle, Pine; Charles A. Quiggle, Williamsport; Joseph Montgomery, Jr., Harrisburg; Hon. Andrew Jackson Quigley, Henry H. Guise, Robert H. Faris, Williamsport; Robert H. Grier, Oriole; Robt. A. Shaw, Avis; John L. Deise, McElhattan; R. S. Stewart, Island; D. A. Cochran, Jersey Shore; Charles C. Quiggle, Lincoln, Neb.; Hon. James W. Crawford, North Bend; Jacob Quiggle, Sr., Pine; Harry W. Shoemaker, New York City Abraham Farrell, Chatham's Run; Ambrose Quiggle, Cogan House; John Quiggle, Walter L. Montgomery, Harrisburg; H. C. Quigley, Bellefonte.

Dog Gave his Life for his Master.

The other day, Thomas Watson, of Union township, was cleaning out a fence row and had with him a little pet dog. Mr. Watson is 80 years of age and as this aged veteran of the war was grubbing he came across a large copperhead snake. He lifted the hoe to strike the poisonous reptile, but the hoe caught in the branches. The snake started for Mr. Watson and would, in all probability had bitten him, had it not been for the dog which came to his rescue by grabbing the vicious reptile, and in the skirmish the dog broke its back. Mr. Watson feels certain that the faithful canine was the means through which his life was saved.—Centre Democrat.

A Communication.

On Sunday I went to Milesburg to visit comrade Frank Wallace and family and took a delightful dinner with them. From there I drifted to see our sick comrade R. J. Gibbs and family at their beautiful home in Bozgs twp. when I met comrade L. T. Wetzler and wife, comrade Joseph Thomas and wife, comrade W. Eckley and two grandchildren Mrs. H. Grove and daughter. I had a bountiful supper and a splendid time.

Robert Hamill Moore Passes Away.

It is our sad duty to record the death of Robert H. Moore, which occured at his residence in Philipsburg Friday about 1 p. m. Mr. Moore has been in failing health for several years past and his condition from the first was considered most serious, if not hopeless, one stroke of paralysis succeeding another, each of which seemed likely to be followed by fatal results He emerged from his sick room time after time and took up the thread of his business with rarely equalled ambition and perseverance.

Mr. Moore has for several years had charge of the wholesale department of Mock & Moore, wholesale and retail dealers in meat, and the work was arduous and the responsibility great, but with indomitable will he pursued it, unwilling to admit his unfitness for it and it has not been more than six weeks since he was obliged by another stroke to give up. Mr. Moore, who was in his forty-sixth year, was a son of the late John Moore of College township, where he was born. About seventeen years ago he came here from Morrisdale, where he had located, and with his brother-in-law, George R. Mock, built up the large and prosperous business of the Philipsburg Beef company. He was an excellent business man and actively interested in public affairs, having served as councilman and was serving his second term as school director He was an affectionate and indulgent husband and father and warm friend.

He was married to Miss Sarah Schreck, of Lemont, who survives him together with two daughters, Maud and Elizabeth, and two sons, Fred and Edward. His aged mother two brothers, John of Philipsburg, Arhie of Altoona, and three sisters, Mrs. Alice Johnsonbaugh, of State College, Mrs. Margaret McKee, of Wilkinsburg, and Mrs. Maud Miller, of Mercersburg, also survive.

The funeral took place Monday at 2 p. m. at the family residence, services conducted by Rev. Miller, of the Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Moore was a member. Interment in Philipsburg cemetery.

More Money to be Expended.

Hon. James Kerr, president of Pennsylvania, Beech Creek and Eastern Coal company, who has lately visited the mines of the company located along the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, announced Monday, says the Clearfield Republican, that the company contemplated the expenditure of a large amount of money for new developements during the next six months with a view of increasing the daily output of the Miller vein coal at the mines.

The demand for both Webster and Pardee coal is greater than they are able to furnish. This company lately contracted for the bunker and cargo delivery to steamships of a large amount of coal at tide-water. The outlook for the ensuing year, we are pleased to say, is very encouraging for this region.

There is no coal in the market today that equals the Clearfield product and it will not be long before all the operators who sought other fields for their capital will be back in old Clearfield working the B and other veins.

Unclaimed Letters.

The following letters remain in the Bellefonte P. O. uncalled for July 29th 1907.

To Remove Slur on Us.

Madrid, Spain, July 26.—When after the Spanish-American war the remains of Christopher Columbus were brought back to spain from Havana and placed in a magnificent sepulchre in the cathedral at Seville, the Spaniards, smarting under the memory of their defeat, placed the following epitaph upon the tomb: "When ungrateful America separated itself from the mother country Seville took back his bones."

Now that the ill-feeling against America has largely disappeared, it is proposed to replace this epitaph with more appropriate words. The municipality of Seville has consulted with the Duke of Veragua, the descendent of Columbus, and the Duke has expressed not only his willingness, but pleasure at the idea of removing from the tomb such an unworthy piece of rancor toward America.

AT CAMP LINDSAY.

An Efficient Body of State Soldiery at Constant Work.

The ideal weather of the past few days, after the thorough policing of the camp grounds by the commands of the Second brigade, has brought out the advantages of the Tipton camp site, after all. There is a minimum of dust, ample parade grounds and comfortable camping ground. Col. Coulter's Tenth regiment, which secured the worst location at the start, has transformed the soggy spot into a pretty good location. The camp of the Sixteenth regiment is as nearly ideal as any in the camp, and the Fifth, the cavalry and the artillery also have fine camps. The Fourteenth and Eighteenth regiments are comfortably fixed and without complaint.

Tuesday and Wednesday were given to drills and preparations for inspection. A regiment or two and all the cavalry and artillery can easily work at the same time, though separately on the parade ground. Large crowds of interested spectators continue to visit the grounds at all times. Tyrone turned out en masse today, Governor's day, all business being suspended to see and do honor to General Wiley's brigade and the commander-in-chief of the state's soldiery.

Governor Stuart arrived at Tipton about 6.45 o'clock Thursday morning and he was met there by Sheridan Troop and Troop F. These troops escorted him to brigade headquarters and Battery B, fired the regulation salute.

Inspection of all the commands were begun Thursday morning. Col. Frank C. Sweeney, inspector general, was assisted by Col. Sheldon C. Potter, who inspected the artillery; Lieut. Col. John P. Penny inspected the cavalry, and Majs. W. P. Clark, C. H. Warman and S. H. Jeffries, Sr., inspected the infantry. Col. Edward Morrell and Lieut. Col. Trexler have been detailed for duty in the judge advocate's department. Col. A. J. Logan inspected the commissary department, assisted by Lieut. Cols. H. L. Halderman and S. B. Cameron. The medical department was inspected by Col. J. K. Weaver, assisted by Lieut. Col. A. S. Stayer. Col. E. H. Ripple were the mustering officer and was assisted by Lieut. Cols. J. M. Reed, J. Brown, W. J. Elliott, C. A. Rook and O. S. Hershman. During the mustering of the troops Maj. Gen. J. P. S. Gobin was accompanied by Maj. F. R. Drake.

General Wiley's order provides for the inspection of the Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Fourteenth and Fifth regiments Thursday, and the Tenth, Battery B. Troop F and Sheridan Troop Friday. That afternoon Gov. Stuart and staff will leave Tipton, and the work of breaking camp will begin.

Maj. Lewis Anshutz, brigade quartermaster, after a conference with the regimental quartermasters announced the order in which the regiments would break camp. The Eighteenth will be the first to leave and will entrain at 1.30 p. m., followed by the Fifth at 3.30 and the Sixteenth at 7 p. m. Troop F, Battery B, and the tenth regiment will leave at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, and Gen. Wiley and his staff and the Fourteenth at 10 o'clock. Sheridan Troop will probably be the last to leave,

A Mean Husband.

A story is told of a Bradford county politician (the sharp and shifty kind) who was urged by his wife to hoe the garden. He could not think of any very good reason, so he went at it. Soon he came in with a silver quarter he said he had found. He washed it, put it in his pocket and went back. In a few minutes he showed up with another coin, this time a half dollar. He said there must be a buried treasure in that garden. Then he unearthed a couple of dimes and another quarter. Being tired, he announced his intention of taking a nap, and duly went to sleep. When he awoke his wife had a dangerous and steely glint in her eye, but the garden was all hoed. It is mistrusted that she hoed while he slept, and that she failed to find any buried treasure.

A Sad Death at Howard.

Robert, the little four year old son of John and Amanda Wagner, died at the family home in Howard Sunday at 3 p. m. Death was due to whooping cough. He was a bright little fellow and his death is a sad blow to his bereaved parents. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon. Services at the house. Interment at Jacksonville.

Primary Department of the Academy to Occupy Beezer Property

The improvements at the Bellefonte Academy still continue. In addition to the wonderful improvment made this spring by the removal of the barns at the rear of the property formerly owned by Mr. Beezer and the conversion of the garden and street into a beautiful campus and driveway. Mr. James Hughes now announces another change in the conduct of the Academy for the coming year which will certainly please the patrons of the primary department as well as the young ladies of the school. The rooms and the large hall way occupying all the first floor space in the recently acquired property at the corner of Bishop and Spring st. will be occupied by Primary and B. Intermediate departments. Miss Overton and her assistant will assume charge. The new tennis court and new campus will become the play ground of this department. This plan solves several problems which Mr. Hughes has been trying to solve for several years and is a great stride foreward in the progress of the Academy.

The large room occupied heretofore by the Primary department will become the English Class room for the Intermediate and Academy grades as well as the assembly room for the young ladies department. One of the best lady English teachers that can be secured will have charge of the young ladies room and all the English work above the B. Intermediate grade. The room occupied last year by the young ladies as their assembly room will be used as a class room only.

Many new pupils should be encouraged to enter the primary department under the new conditions. The necessity of climbing the Academy hill and then ascending stairs to the second floor has been removed by this new plan in the interest of the young pupils.

Beware of Benedicts!

By H. M. KERNER.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

The new Mrs. Wolcott regarded Billy Bevan distrustfully. Not until the train had pulled out and she had sent her newly acquired husband forward to the baggage car to remove excess baggage in the shape of white satin streamers from their trunks would she feel safe. Billy Bevan was only happy when playing practical jokes. He was happiest when his victims were bridal couples.

Suddenly Bevan snapped a handcuff upon her husband's wrist and was drawing the bride and groom together with a mocking "till death do thee part" when he felt the cold steel on his own wrist and heard the fatal click. He, not the bride, was handcuffed to Wolcott.

"I say," he cried protestingly, "this is not fair."

"You can unlock yourself in time to leave at the next station," said Wolcott. "It's poetic justice, Billy."

"It's confoundedly unpleasant," Billy deforted. "You see, I did not get the key; never supposed that I should need

"YOU WISH HIM RELEASED AT THE NEXT STATION?" ASKED THE MAGICIAN.

one. I just could see you going to the hotel and asking that a pitcher of ice water and a policeman be sent to your room."

"This is the better joke," smiled Wolcott. "It will teach you that marriage is something sacred, not merely a peg upon which to hang fool jokes. Let's go ahead to the smoking car. We will be less conspicuous there than here."

Arm in arm they made their way to the cafe car, but once there Wolcott dropped Bevan's wrist and let the cuff show.

They immediately became the center of attention. One man, more curious than the rest, turned to Wolcott. "Your prisoner?" he asked. The bridegroom regarded Bevan with a benevolent smile.

"He is a prisoner of his own making," Wolcott explained. "The jail yawns for him, but it is more likely to be the insane asylum that finally comes into its own."

"I see," grinned the questioner. "You're that bridal couple three cars back."

"I am part of that happy pair," conceded Wolcott, "but this is not the partner of my joys and sorrows. He simply shares my sorrows at the present time."

"You're a sharer all right," agreed Bevan with a chuckle. "There's some consolation in that. Think of poor Bess back there in the chair car all alone."

"She would rather be rid of us," said Wolcott comfortably. "It is all your own fault, Billy. I begged you not to try any of your fool tricks. Beware of the benedicts, Billy. They will all pay you back some day when your neck goes under the matrimonial yoke."

"The lady says to come on back and bring your friend," reported the white coated porter. "There's a seat next yours he can get."

Bevan's eyes snapped. He could make things interesting back in the chair car. But his amiable intention to turn the joke on his involuntary host was checked, for a dapper little man stepped forward.

"Permit me," he said. "I am a handcuff magician. "I can take those off if you wish."

"Then he'll go ranting through the train," said Wolcott. "I'd rather have him where I can watch him."

"No, it will be all right," said the magician as he drew a handkerchief over the cuffs. A click and Wolcott withdrew his hand, rubbing his chafed wrist. Bevan attempted to do the same, but when the handcuff king removed the cloth it was seen that the cuff had been slipped around the arm of Bevan's chair.

"You wish him released at the next station?" asked the magician.

"Better carry him to Presby," said Wolcott. "He has some friends there."

Bevan groaned. Grace Coburn lived at Presby. If any one should detect his plight and tell her— He shook his free fist after Wolcott's retreating form.

At Presby, Wolcott came up just as the first cuff was unfastened from the chair.

"Let him keep the other," he suggested. "He seems so fond of them it would be a shame to remove them."

"Monsieur is too fond of a joke to let this terminate so abruptly? Is it not so?"

"Give my regards to Grace in case you see her," called Wolcott as Bevan made for the door. Bevan breathed a prayer that he would not see her, but as he stepped to the platform she came toward him with sparkling eyes.

"Why didn't you let us know that you were coming?" she cried as she shook hands.

"I didn't know it myself," he explained. "You see, I was carried off while I was saying goodby to Ted Wolcott and Bess, so I came on for a call."

"I'm glad you did," she said smilingly. "It's too bad I did not know that Bess was on the train. I came to see May Lewis off. Oh, have you hurt your wrist, Billy?"

"A little," he admitted lamely, scowling at the handkerchief bandage around the offending cuffs. "I'll tell you about it as we drive out."

He followed her over to the dogcart.

"That was very careless," she scolded. "You must have hurt your wrist."

"It's not my wrist that hurts; it's my feelings," he began. When he had explained his plight he added, "Bert was hoping you would be here to see me—and you were," he ended miserably.

"Are you sorry that I was?" she demanded.

"Sorry? Not a bit of it, only a man feels such a fool."

"If you ever marry what a lot of back scores there will be to be paid off."

"Yes, Ted was telling me to beware of the benedicts. No girl would want to marry a man that will get the send-off that's in preparation for me."

"She would not care very much for you if she could not stand a little teasing for your sake," she said softly.

"A little teasing!" he echoed. "Why, they are liable to wreck the train to get square. How would you like"—

"There's a blacksmith shop just ahead," she said hurriedly to change the topic. "I guess he could cut that cuff."

The blacksmith could and did.

"That lets you out of a scrape," Grace said when they were under way again.

"Only to get into a greater one," he declared. "I—well, I've been trying for months to get up my courage to ask you to marry me, dear. I think you know that I love you. I know that you love me or you would have joked me about the scrape I was in. Do you think, dear, that you love me enough to say 'Yes?'"

"I think I can brave even the benedicts," she answered shyly.

Character In the Eyes.

Character reading from the features is an interesting study in which most people indulge, though perhaps unconsciously. A man is heard frequently to remark that he never judges a person by external appearances, but let a person apply to this same man for a position and the first thing he will do will be to make a mental estimate of the character, ability and general condition of the applicant. And he does this from outward appearances entirely. When a man applies for a job look at his eyes. More signs of character are expressed through the eyes than any other feature. The eye is the window to the brain, and through it an expert character reader can often see many a tale that would be lost to the average person. A guilty eye has sent more than one criminal to meet his fate, and a steady, unflinching one has helped many a man through a serious difficulty.—Frequenter.

Fish Laws.

A number of infamous fish bills which if passed would have made fish protection a further impossibility were introduced in the legislature, but luckily met the fate they deserved, with the exception of two or three.

The only changes made in the fish laws was the act legalizing gigging and an act allowing the use of unlimited rods and lines and making the violation of that section a misdeamor.

These measures should also have been killed, especially the gigging act, as this law is already being grossly abused reports coming repeatedly to state fish commissioner at Harrisburg from many parts of the state, that giggers are out in full force nightly and spearing game fish as well as the kinds allowed to be taken in this manner and that the wardens can do little or nothing with these rabid hordes of fisherman.

The gigging act makes it lawful to kill carp, suckers, mullets and eels in the public waters of this commonwealth, in which brook and other trout are not established or have been planted by the state, by means of a gig or spear, having a space of not less than one-half an inch between the prongs from May first to October thirty-first, inclusive, in each year; and it is not lawful to use such gig or spear at any time of the year or in any waters of the state for the catching of any species of fish other than carp, suckers, mullets and eels.

Any person violating any of provisions of this act, shall be liable to a fine of ten dollars for each fish so taken, together with forfeiture of boats, gigs and all other appliances used to the department of fisheries, and in addition be deprived of the right to fish with gig or spear for two years after conviction.

Dale and Bennett's Lumbering Operations.

On Sunday afternoon a trio of Bellefonte gentlemen drove out to the foothills of the Alleghenies, in the section known as Bush Hollow, to see the Dale and Bennett lumbering operations, and there they found A. A. Dale Esq., almost as much a son of the forest as the primeval Indian on his native heath. And all around were evidences of the fact that their operation there is not a small one in the least, but it will require an unusual amount of hard labor and considerable ingenuity to get some of their timber to the mill for cutting.

The mill, by the way, is located in a quadrangle, at the base of four mountain peaks, the entire plot being less than an acre in extent. On this is located their mill, which is quite a large one with a new Peerless engine to furnish the power; their long skids, lumber yard, etc., while from it leads the narrow guage railroad on which their logs are brought to the mill. They have considerable lumber sawed and piled up and have already marketed some. Just now they are working on a good order of bill stuff for an Altoona firm.

At least fifty per cent., of their timber is located far up the mountain side and to cut this and get it to their mill will be no easy job, but once they have it thire and cut up there will be no trouble disposing of it at good prices.

Mr. Dale and his men occupy a two-story house which is kept for them by Mr. and Mrs. McCloskey, so that he naturally enjoys many of the comforts of home. One thing he does have there that is the equal of Bellefonte and that is the water, as from a spring situated close by the house gushes forth the purest and coldest kind of water. The only drawback this spring has been that there is no trout in the stream near there, else Al. would doubtless have had trout breakfasts most every morning, but he anticipates making up for this when the game season opens in the fall by virtually living on wild meat; and in the end come home healthier, wealthier and happier.

Attorney's Narrow Escape.

J. J. Kintner, the well-known Renovo attorney, will in all probability never again until he answers the final summons, be called upon to look death so squarely in the face as he did Friday evening while bathing in the river at the foot of Seventh street, says the Renova News. Mr. Kintner had taken his little son into the water with him and the boy after a time became frightened and throwing his arms about his father clung so closely as to choke him. Unable to make the boy loose his grip, Mr. Kintnor struggled to reach the shore but presently sank with the boy, in his arms. The river was full of bathers and just as Mr. Kintner sank the second time he was seen and himself and boy saved from a watery grave.

The Diplomacy Of Ted....

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

Copyrighted, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.

"You see, I wouldn't mind it a bit if it were not for Uncle Halbert, but if I marry you and go to Denver, Bob, what would become of him? He hasn't a soul in the world but me, and he's forty-nine"—

"Forty-nine isn't old," interrupted Bob gloomily.

"It isn't for most men, but it is for a man like Uncle Halbert," Gwendolin answered seriously. "It isn't as though he had led an active business life, Bob. He has always been so seclusive; you know what I mean—he had lived by himself and for himself until mamma died and I came to live at the Maples. That is over fifteen years ago, and I know that if I were to marry and leave him all alone here it would break his heart."

"Let him come with us," suggested Bob, walking up and down the strip of beach below the sand dune, where the figure in the blue cloak sat in solitary state. "It's a great climate out there. He'd like it all right as soon as he got accustomed to the change. Of course, it might come hard to an old man like that"—

"You just said he wasn't old"—

"Well, he's too old to care one way or the other.

"Bob Daulton, how can you talk so heartlessly?"

Daulton stopped short in his walking and faced the figure in blue, his hands deep in his pockets, his young face set and resolute.

"Just because I want you for my wife," he said, "and any obstacle that stands in my way after you yourself have said yes has simply got to be overcome—that's why. I like Mr. Rutherford all right. He's a fine old fellow, but I don't see just why we should blight our whole life's happiness in order to insure his not getting lonesome. And he won't be. He has lots of neighbors"—

"He hates neighbors," interposed Gwendolin sadly, her chin on her

"WHAT ARE YOU DOING, TED?" ASKED BOB.

palms. "He has quarreled with the Lawrences over the greenhouses they built that spoil the view from the arbor, and he doesn't like the new people at Greystone a bit. He says they're too excitable."

"He did, did he?" laughed Bob. "Well, he must enjoy excitement a little himself. When I drove in to the postoffice yesterday, I saw him riding beside little Mrs. Ainslee in her red and black runabout. They were clipping along the post road to beat the band, and he didn't look worried a bit over any excitement."

"He was not riding for pleasure," said Gwendolin coldly. "Mrs. Ainslee's little boy Teddy was bitten by a snapping turtle, and uncle simply went with her to the doctor's. Teddy was with them."

"Well, he wasn't in evidence, and I didn't hear any moans of pain. The old boy and the widow seemed to be enjoying themselves all right. Anyway, that kid ought to be suppressed. He put one of those snapping turtles in with my terriers last week, and it didn't do a thing but nip Napoleon's ear and take a bite at Lady Gay's nose."

"What were the terriers doing?" Gwendolin's blue eyes lighted with quick merriment.

"Nothing except k'yi-ing. You can't take a grip on a turtle shell, and every time one would make a dash at the turtle's head it would draw it in. And Teddy thought it was great fun."

"So it was," approved the young woman on the sand dune. "I didn't know Teddy had so much sense of humor. That must be why Uncle Hal likes him. Generally he doesn't care for children a bit."

"Maybe Teddy would keep him from being lonesome, then, after we've gone to Denver." Bob waited an instant, then caught encouragement from the face above him and took the sand dune at four steps. "Gwen, darling, quit teasing and behave. It isn't a joke. It's our life's happiness at stake just because this old fossil wants your company. What do we care even if he cut you off without a cent? I'll have enough for two, and I'm not afraid of him. I'll go to him after dinner tonight and tell him the whole thing and let him sizzle"—

"You can't tell him tonight, Mr. Daulton," interrupted an interested, eager little voice from the other side of the dune. "He's coming over to our house for dinner. Why don't you tell him right now?"

Bob withdrew his arm hurriedly from its resting place, and Gwen pinned up some stray tumbled locks with fingers that trembled even while she laughed at the picture below them. Standing in the pool of water left by the tide in the rocks below was Teddy Ainslee. His short duck pants were rolled high about his bare tanned legs, and his face was intensely serious as he balanced a tin pail and toy rake in his hands and stared up at the two figures on the sand dune.

"What are you doing, Ted?" asked Bob impersonally. "Digging for clams?"

"Nope; crabs," returned Ted laconically. "Got five. Two's most dead, though. Why don't you tell him right now? He's over there with mamma, over behind the clubhouse. They're sitting on the rocks, talking about our coming to live in his house. Say, I'm going to have a room all to myself, he says, and a pony, and a real boat, maybe. Aren't you glad I'm coming to live with you, Gwen?"

Gwendolin's hand closed over the strong one that reached for it, with a warm, close grip. For a moment her eyes met Bob's, swift, questioning, amazed, laughing, all in one quick sweeping glance of understanding. Bob started to laugh aloud, but she checked him and bent toward the little figure standing in the water below.

"Indeed, I am glad, Teddy," she said very gently, very diplomatically, "but I didn't know about it. When are you coming, dear?"

Teddy's gaze wandered musingly over the stretch of shore to where the clubhouse made a splash of green and white on the landscape. From where he stood he could see a white parasol, and down behind the chiffon ruffles on that parasol sat Mr. Rutherford and his mother.

"Just as soon as he's my papa," he told the two above him calmly. "I like him real well. He asked me if he could have mamma, and I told him I didn't mind. He used to know mamma a long time ago, and he liked her then, but she liked me best. She don't any more, though. She likes him best, but I don't care. I told him maybe I'd marry you, Gwen."

"That was awfully sweet of you, Teddy, dear," began Gwendolin.

"Just so you wouldn't be lonesome, you know," Ted assured her, "because I s'pose maybe he us d to like you best, too, and now he won't any more, 'cause he told mamma he liked her the bestest in the whole world."

"God bless you, Teddikins," murmured Bob thankfully. "I'll buy you a bear for this, six feet tall."

"When are you coming to live with us, Teddy?" asked Gwendolin, her voice a little unsteady, her face flushed rosily. The big hand was crushing her own so that it hurt.

"Pretty soon," said Ted encouragingly. "That's why they made me come away now. They're talking it over. They're going to hurry up and get married before you find it out, so it won't be a sudden shock. That's what Mr. Rutherford said. I heard him tell mamma that they must avoid any sudden shock to Gwen's nerves. So they're going to run away and get married, and then he's going to break it to you."

Bob gave an explosive peal of joy and rolled over on the sand at Gwendolin's feet. But Gwendolin sat still, her eyes bright with happiness and hope ahead, her chin resting on one palm and her eyes filled with sudden tears.

"Don't you cry, Gwen," called up Teddy courageously. "I'll love you and keep you from being lonesome."

Gwendolin laughed, a quick, breaking laugh of tears and happiness combined, and held out both hands to Bob.

"Thanks, Teddy, dear, so much, but I don't think I'll be very lonesome. After—after poor Uncle Hal has broken the news to me I think I shall go to Denver."

Empresses of Japan.

Women played an important part in the early history of Japan. To a woman, the Empress Jingu, belongs the glory of the first conquest made by Japan, that of Korea, A. D. 201. Dressed as a man, she led her fleet over the unknown waters, across which she alone believed a country lay to the westward. "If we succeed," she said to her chiefs, "the glory will all be yours. I will be responsible for the infamy of a possible defeat." The Koreans laid their wealth at the feet of the conquerors, and the king swore that so long as the stars shone and water ran down hill Korea should be faithful to Japan. This achievement of the empress gave rise to the boast of the Japanese, "The arms of Japan shine beyond the seas." But the most important fruit of her victory was the introduction of Buddhism from Korea, as well as Asiatic art, science, medicine and literature. Jingu, however, was never actually proclaimed head of the empire. The first female ruler was Suiko, and since her time eight empresses have governed Japan, some of them with great wisdom.

The Genius of Ancient Greece.

An authority on old Greek history says, and in my opinion rightly, that the average intelligence of the assembled Athenian citizens was higher than that of our house of commons. No doubt the Athenian public was by no means so learned as we moderns are. They were ignorant of many sciences, of much history—in short, of a thousand results of civilization—but in civilization itself, in mental power, in quickness of comprehension, in correctness of taste, in accuracy of judgment, no modern nation, however well instructed, has been able to equal by labored acquirements the inborn genius of the Greeks.—Mahaffy's "Social Life In Greece."

An Agricultural Surprise.

"Eastern visitors to the west are generally prepared for any phenomenal showing in the line of agriculture, stock raising and the like," says a Colorado man, "but once in awhile they are taken by surprise. A New Hampshire man who was spending his vacation on a ranch of a relative in Colorado went out one morning to inspect a large incubator in which the young chicks were hatching. In one corner of the incubator a neglected peach seed encouraged by the warmth of the atmosphere had burst, and a tiny sprout several inches long was growing out of it.

"'Suffering Caesar!' exclaimed the New Hampshire man as this caught his eye. 'Do you hatch out your peaches in this country?'"—Kansas City Independent.

Legend of the Moss Rose.

A German tradition gives the origin of the moss rose as follows: An angel came to earth in mortal guise. He sought a place of shelter and repose after his labors of love, but every door was shut against the heavenly visitor. At length the angel, being very weary, sank upon the ground and over him a rosebush spread like a tent. It caught upon its outspread leaves the falling dew which would otherwise have drenched the messenger of love. Waking, the angel said to the rose:

"Thou hast yielded the shelter that man denied;
A proof of my love shall with the abide."
And the green moss gathered about the stem
While the dewdrops shone like a diadem,
Crowning the blushing flower.

Story of a Greek Saint.

A member of the Royal Geographical society gives this little story of a Greek saint: "Our good St. Blazios gave us the phrase 'drunk as Blazes,' for this saint was pleasantly done to death by having his flesh torn off by wool combs, and so he became the patron of the English wool combers, and as a high feast was kept up on his day and the people who frequented the feast were called Blazers so the saying grew into the English tongue and remains there fixed and useful."

Both Deceived.

Customer—You have deceived me outrageously! You told me that I would be provided with a good watch as long as I lived, and now after barely a fortnight it is quite good for nothing! Watchmaker—But it is not my fault that you were so thin and sick looking!—Translated For Transatlantic Tales From Fliegende Blatter.

Advice They Heed.

"Yes, I'm going abroad at once. I gotta go."

"Oh, you mustn't let the doctors scare you!"

"I got this from a lawyer."—Washington Herald.

GOOD FRIENDS ARE THE JAPS

Two Admirals Exchange Compliments in Paris.

THEY TALK OF PEACE

They Declare that United States and Japan Understand Each Other Thoroughly.

FRANCE ALSO A STAUNCH FRIEND

Paris, July 26.—The "Eclair" this morning publishes long interviews with Vice Admiral Ijuin and Rear admiral Charles H. Stockton. The Japanese Admiral pointed out that the United States and France had introduced Japan to modern life, for which Japan was profoundly grateful.

"The patient efforts of the French government," said Vice Admiral Ijuin, "joined with those of Japan, have led to the conclusion of an entente. I should say, rather, that Japan and France are allies, for it is not merely an entente cordiale which exists.

JAPS LOVE AMERICANS.

"The United States has never ceased to be a friend of Japan. Those things which have inspired opposing opinions have been greatly exaggerated. We love the Americans. Yes, proclaim it on high, the Americans are our friends, and to them we will always remain faithful, attached as we are to them by gratitude and friendship."

Rear Admiral Stockton said during the course of the interview:

"The enemy you have conjured is a friend of Japan, our pupil of yesterday. Besides, aren't we the first people to treat Japan as a civilized nation and the Japanese as our equals?

UNDERSTAND EACH OTHER.

"The government at Washington and Tokio understand each other. If light clouds have passed over the clear sky it is because some people in California have been disturbed by the recent catastrophe and rendered excitable by the daily struggle for life. I love the Japanese. I have been in Japan twice and Admiral Sakamoto, to whom was attributed that too famous interview, is my friend."

In answer to a question by the interviewer, Admiral Stockton said that in his opinion Sakamoto was misquoted.

"Gil Blas" prints an interview with Vice Admiral Ijuin, who said in answer to a question:

"I do not know of any tension, such as you have suggested, existing between the United States and Japan."

Admiral Ijuin referred to the France-Japanese entente, saying:

"It is a grand thing, which will produce, as you will see, wonderful results. United, and remaining thus, France, Great Britain and Japan are invincible in the world."

CASTORIA.

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

A Tribute to the "Gallant Fifth."

(By Color Serg't J. R. Hughes, Bellefonte.)

All hail to the Fifth, so brave and ready
To rush to arms for fearless Teddy,
Who loves the soldier boys so true,
Garbed in their Khaki suits or blue.

Trust in the Fifth for our nation's aid.
It stands at the head of a fine brigade,
Its skill, devotion will keep it there
With its personnel beyond compare.

It heeded the call to the Spanish war,
With its sufferings sure and cannons' roar;
And, though not seen on battlefield,
It had the courage, would never yield.

But if today the drum would beat
A "call to arms" the foe to meet
You'd find our colonel at the head,
Backed by his boys with arms and lead.

Back in the eighties, at Roaring Springs,
Our colonel of whom the writer sings,
Shinned a tree and lit a candle,
Provoking fun guards couldn,t handle.

Since that night of illumination
He's honored every post and station
To which his high ideals aspired
With purpose and pluck all have admired.

And now possessed of hope that's fair,
Some day to fill the governor's chair,
We honor him and wish him well,
Will he make it? Can we foretell?

Let staff and band and fighters give
One long hurrah that long may live
Our nation's flag and bravest chief;
And may we never cause them grief.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Drink plenty of buttermilk if you can get it.

—The trout season closed Wednesday July 31st.

—Keep the painter's busy. They add greatly to the appearance of the town.

—J. Henry Wetzel has had a concrete walk laid in front of his residence on East Linn street.

—Don't forget to water your horse and other stock often these days. They need it and should have it.

—A new concrete side walk has been laid along side of Gamble, Gheen & Co's building leading to the shirt factory.

—Philipsburg had a $10,000 fire Saturday morning when the Philipsburg Beef Company's plant was partially destroyed.

—Harry Leopard a son of John Leopard of Lamb street, fell from a hay mow a few days ago and cut a deep gash in his shoulder.

—The Kelley brothers at Snow Shoe have bought a big four cylinder touring car. It is a Thomas and is a dandy machine built to "go some."

—Mr. and Mrs. John Knisely are entertaining a party of friends at the Mason's camp at Roland this week. Among those who went down Tuesday we noticed, Miss Pearl Knisely, Miss Winifred Gates, Miss Fannie Barnhart, and Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Knisely.

—In the matter of the redistribution of Troop D, of State Mounted Police, it is said one of the detachments will be located at Curwensville and another at Bellefonte. There will be several other sub-stations, with the general headquarters remaining at Punxsutawney.

—Mr. George T. Bush has received another pretty novelty addition to his already extensive Post Card line. It is the form of a heart ready for mailing containing inside a string of 24 very pretty miniature views of town and Country. It is certainly a pretty novelty and will help advertise our pretty town.

—Reports from the blackberry fields are that the crop is going to be immense this year. The cool weather has given the berries just the right start and has been wet enough to keep them growing. The green berries are hanging in big bunches and the outlook for blackberry pie is indeed bright, to say nothing of that delight of our childhood, the good old blackberry jam.

—Shamokin comes to the front with an entirely original story. Two young eagles were hatched out under a hen Two months ago Roman Ukleski, of Shamokin, received from his brother in Germany two eagle's eggs. He placed them under a hen and awaited results. Tuesday night the eggs, having ripened, bore fruit, and two tiny little eagles are being cared for by the proud mother hen. There will be further doings when the lords of the air attain their full growth.

—The traffic of the Pennsylvania in July was remarkably heavy, both for freight and passengers. The Elks' convention in Philadelphia added largely to passenger travel and the summer excursion business, which had been somewhat slack earlier in the season, has improved materially. Officials express the opinion that this heavy movement will continue without interruption throughout the summer months, and as far as can now be seen the record will also be maintained in the autumn months.

—About four months ago Col. Austin Curtin left Bellefonte for Philadelphia where he entered the Presbyterian hospital for treatment. After laying on his back for 5 weeks, without seeing any good results, he got up and took the train for his home at Roland. He only remained there a short time when he went to Richmond, where he has been for two months. On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock he underwent an operation in the hospital at that place, and a telegram from his wife, to Gen. John I. Curtin, says that it was a success, and all indications point to his permanent recovery.

—Martin Crissman, a Sinking Valley farmer, the other day killed a black-snake six feet three inches long. The cries of a rabbit attracted his attention to a clump of bushes, where he found the snake trying to swallow bunnie. Three rabbits and two birds were found in the snake when it was cut open. Farmers report that snakes are more plentiful in the region this summer than for many years. They claim that owing to the many spring rains there were no forest fires and the usual number of reptiles escaped roasting. The copperhead is unusually numerous.

—The young man or old who declines to enter a gambling den is pretty safe.

—Have you been to the new Thetorium? You should go the pictures are fine.

—A smart North Ward young lady is worrying herself almost to death to find out where the wind goes when it don't blow.

Married—At the Methodist Episcopal parsonage on East Linn street Monday July 29th, LeRoy Porter and Rosetta Pearl McAlevy, both of Huntingdon county, were united in wedlock by Rev. James B. Stein.

—Company B, 5th Regiment N. G. P., returned home Friday evening at 8:30 from the N. G. P., encampment at Tipton. The boys looked sunburned and healthy after their week's outing report having had a pleasant time. They were pleased with the camp in every particular. Company B and the 5th Regiment made splendid records and can well feel proud of their work.

—On Friday evening a committee from the Royal Arcanum headed by Treasurer James K. Barnhart and Dr. A. W. Hafer visited the home of Mrs. Sarah A. Kline, widow of Harrison Kline, on East High street, and presented her with a check for the snug sum of $2884.99 being the amount of insurance her late husband carried in this order. For taking care of their members and promptness in paying insurance the Royal Arcanum is hard to beat.

—Marx B. Loeb, who at one time lived in Bellefonte and ran a butcher shop on Bishop street, is dangerously ill at his cottage at Atlantic City, and the attending physicians have little hope of his recovery. After leaving Bellefonte he went to Philadelphia and became a member of a firm of clothiers. He prospered and became quite wealthy. A number of years ago he retired from business and since has occupied apartments at the hotel Majestic, Philadelphia. He is seventy-one years of age and has a wife, two sons and two daughters, all living in the Quaker City.

—Thomas Mitchell Oakes, aged 60 years, a prominent state highways' contractor, of Huntingdon, is believed to be dying at his home as a result of injuries sustained in a runaway accident Saturday night. Oakes was driving Hawn's bridge to Huntingdon and when decending a steep hill the shaft snapped off, frightening his horse and causing it to run away. The man was thrown from his mount into the road way, alighting on his head. A concussion of the brain was inflicted and Oakes is now in a critical condition.

—The moon was partially obscured from view Wednesday night by the shadow of the earth. The event was of special interest to astronomers, because one of the largest comets discovered in recent years is now on its way toward the moon. The rings of the planet of Saturn are invisible, despite the efforts of astronomers to locate them. At 10:04 Wednesday night the moon encountered the shadow of the earth and this shadow gradually spread over the moon until at 11.30 the maximum shadow appeared five-eighths of the moon being obscured. The eclipse continued a period of forty-one minutes.

—The August American Magazine is a story number from beginning to end. Even the leading article by Lincoln Steffens is a story. It is an account of the life of Francis J. Heney, the man who has prosecuted "Abe" Ruef and Mayor Schmitz in San Francisco and the land thieves in Oregon and elsewhere. Mr. Steffens describes Heney as "a fighter who has fought, not only for his life but for his principles." In this first article of his new series Mr. Steffens takes up Heney as a fighter for his own life in the wild west. The stories he tells are exciting, and in some instances blood-curdling.

—Tyler, near Clearfield, is prevaded by an epidemic of diphtheria which is rapidly spreading in spite of the medicinal care that is being given. This is due to the fact the foreign element evade whenever possible the quarantine that is placed upon them and roam at liberty. The spread of the disease is also due to the filthy conditions in which these people allow their homes and persons to become. A trip up the valley through what is known as "uptown" shows a sight of dirt and squalor unsurpassed by any large city. This combined with the unsanitary condition of the interior of the house makes it extremely difficult for the medical fraternity to keep the disease subdued.

—Sunday afternoon Harry L. Garber thought he would take a trip up to Tipton to see the soldiers. He started in his Buick runabout and when about four miles this side of Tyrone his battery gave out and no amount of coaxing could induce the sparker to work. While he was working with his machine Dr. Sebring happened along in his Franklin and undertook to tow Garber into Tyrone but his car was too light for the work. He then went into Tyrone hunted up the garage and the owner went after Garber with a big Pierce Arrow machine. He was towed into Tyrone, arriving there about nine o'clock in the evening and it was one o'clock in the morning before he got his machine fixed and ready to start home and it was 3 30 when he arrived Monday morning, and he didn't see the soldiers, either.

—Miss Winifred Gates a teacher in the Presbyterian Sunday School, entertained her class at Hecla Park Friday. All report having had a nice time.

—Calvin Mallory, who for several years was a resident of Altoona, passed away Sunday afternoon at his home in that place. He was a foreman in the Pennsylvania Railroad shops and leaves a wife and family. He was a brother of George Mallory of this place

—Col Emanuel Noll was a pleasant caller at our office one day recently and knowing the sweet tooth the Editor possesses left him two boxes of the finest honey you ever saw, fresh from the bee hives at his Allegheny street home. Managing the baggage department for the P. R. R., is not the only thing that Col. Noll knows how to do well, for as a bee culturist he is meeting with splendid success. He raises the bees that produce the purest and best honey to be found in this part of the country. It is much in demand by those who are fond of this delicious food product.

Bellefonte to get State Constabulary.

In a recent issue we mentioned that Bellefonte was to get a detachment of State Constabulary. The following further particulars we take from the Curwensville Review:

There is to be a complete redistribution of the state police in accordance with the plans of last legislature. Deputy Superintendent Chester Morris arrived at Punxsutawney Saturday from Harrisburg, and will at once go about the work of districting the members of Troop D.

Punxsutawney is to be the general headquarters for the five counties which are to be stationed at each of the following towns, covering the counties in which they are located:

Cambria—Barnesboro.
Centre—Bell-fonte
Indiana county—Indiana and Heilwood.
Armstrong—Kittaning.
Jefferson—Punxsutawney.

Each of the sub-districts will be provided with barracks in the towns in which they are located. The new arrangement will necessitate a considerable addition to the force of the constabulary, but it is expected to greatly enhance their efficiency in policing the various districts.

The troopers will be at the disposal of the district attorneys in the several counties.

Other troopers throughout the state will be similarly re-districted.

The I. O. O. F. Orphanage.

The semi-annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Central Pennsylvania Orphans' Home was held recently at the Orphanage, near Sunbury. Thirty-five out of the forty directors were present. The principal business of the day was the receiving of the reports of the various committees on supplies, property, education and finance. The progress made towards collecting fonds for the erection of the new building of the orphanage was reported as excellent. There is $16.000 in the building fund and $7,000 in the general fund. All connected with the project have gone to work with the greatest enthusiasm to raise the necessary money. Even the children themselves, by their entertainment, raised $2,800 to help in this good cause. The members of the various lodges resonded promptly to their assessment of twenty-five cents per capita and money rolled into the coffers of the fraternity in streams surpassing the dreams ot the promoters. With such backing the directors saw their way clear to erect another dormitory in addition to those already projected. The sum of $21 800 is necessary to construct the boys dormitory and the administration building; $8,000 additional will be sufficient to erect a girls' dormitory. The plans will be extended, and the new dormitory rushed to completion along with the others.

The corner stone laying has been set for August 15th. It is now believed that all the projected buildings will be finished and ready for dedication by January I, 1908.

Improvements at Gamble, Gheen & Co's Mill.

The improvements which have been going on at the flouring mill of Gamble, Gheen & Co., in this place, were completed on Monday and on Tuesday the water was turned in the race and the mill started. The biggest improvement was tha building of an entire new tail race, forebay and wheel pit of solid concrete. Heretofore the above were built of wood but even by using the best lumber obtainable, they rotted in a comparatively small number of years and had to be rebuilt. This time the proprietors decided to put in concrete and the work has been completed and there is hardly any doubt but that it will last a lifetime, or longer.

The wheel pit has been lowered several feet and with the installation of new twin turbine wheels the power of the mill has been increased at least fifty per cent., or sufficient to drive all the machinery in the mill at one time and do it easily.

Lieutenant Nora Weaver, the attractive young lady who arrived in Bellefonte a week before last, to take charge of the Salvation Army corps at this place, left Wednesday for Pottstown where she will be in charge in the near future. We are very sorry to see Miss Weaver go, as we feel sure she was well fitted to take charge of this corps. Through her kind and loving disposition she has won many friends in this place who will never forget her. We sincerely hope she will get a good appointment as she certainly deserves it. Her stay in our town has been very short, but we feel sure that she has made lasting impression on the people. During the past two weeks she has proven herself to be a devout christian with a mild, gentle disposition which seemed to love all with whom she came in contact. We feel sorry to have her leave our town, as she was loved by all, and we join in wishing her the hearty compliments of the day, we also hope that before long she will be in our town again.

DuBois Drinks Beef Tea.

The people of DuBois have apparently been quenching their thirst with larger beer and beef tea instead of beer and water, according to the following from last week's Courier of that place.

A rather unpleasant report came to town Friday from Home Camp. It was to the effect that there is a dead cow in the upper part of the Anderson creek reservoir. The story did not come as an official report to the authorities here, but leaked out in a casual way through a conversation with a farmer from Home Camp.

The farmer was offered a drink of water at Boyer's harness shop. "Where did you get it?" he asked as the glass was proffered to him. He was told that the water came from Sprankle's well. "If that is so, I'll drink it," said the farmer. "But if it were from the Anderson dam—not for mine. There is a dead cow soaking in the reservoir."
